

THE SECRET CABAL

"Whereas the Council on Foreign Relations is distinctly national in membership, the Trilateral Commission is international. . . . It is intended to be the vehicle for multi-national consolidation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the United States."

Senator Barry Goldwater, 1979, "With No Apologies," p. 280. [2]

"Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure - one world, if you will. Most people know something is seriously wrong in our country, but they don't understand the cause of the problem or what can be done to remedy the situation. Why are there 20-25 million unemployed people in the United States? Why isn't the federal government enforcing our immigration laws? Why does the federal government give tax incentives to manufacturers who offshore their production and outsource their jobs? Who is responsible for the economic recession that is crippling our nation?

I will address those questions in this and several subsequent Radio Liberty letters. If you read them you will discover:

I. The U.S. is controlled by a secret cabal.

II. The cabal is transferring U.S. jobs, factories, and wealth to other nations.

III. The cabal is implementing provision 10A of the Earth Charter.

If the U.S. is controlled by a secret cabal, why hasn't someone told the American people? Members of the covert organizations control most of the major media outlets in the U.S., and if a commentator or writer mentions the secret cabal, or permits someone to discuss it, the commentator or writer will lose their job, be blacklisted, and never work in the media again.

Many years ago a well-known San Francisco radio talk-show host told me he couldn't say what he believed on his program because if he told the truth he would be fired.

I recently had lunch with the editor of a major newspaper, and he told me he can't write what he believes, he must write what he is told to write.

Gary Webb, a Pulitzer Prize winning investigative reporter who worked for the San Jose Mercury News, wrote a series of articles about the CIA's involvement in the drug industry. The San Jose Mercury News verified the information and published the articles, but several weeks later someone contacted the editor of the newspaper and told him to fire Gary Webb, and blacklist him. As a result, Gary Webb couldn't get a job at any newspaper in the United States, and several years later he committed suicide by shooting himself in the head twice to be certain he was dead. [4]

That situation has existed in the United States for over a hundred years.

John Swinton was the editorial page editor of the New York Times from 1860-1870. When he addressed a group of journalists at the Twilight Club in New York City on April 12, 1883, he stated:

"There is no such thing in America as an independent press, unless it is in the country towns. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you who dare to write his honest opinions, and if you did you know beforehand they would never appear in print. I am paid $150 a week for keeping my honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid similar salaries for doing similar things. If I should permit honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, like Othello, before twenty-four hours, my occupation would be gone. . . . We are intellectual prostitutes." [5]

Very little has changed since that time except for the fact that members of the secret cabal control more media outlets, and they have developed very sophisticated methods of controlling the reality of the American people.

On rare occasions a courageous member of the media has tried to expose the influence of the secret cabal. Richard Harwood worked for The Washington Post for 22 years, and during those years he wrote what he was told to write, but after Richard Harwood retired, he wrote an article titled "Ruling Class Journalists" that exposed the totalitarian influence of the Council on Foreign Relations. Why is that important? It's important because the CFR is one of the major "front organizations" for the secret cabal that controls our nation.

On October 30, 1993, Richard Harwood wrote:

"The president is a member. So is his secretary of state, the deputy secretary of state, all five of the undersecretaries, several of the assistant secretaries and the department's legal adviser. The president's national security adviser and his deputy are members. The director of Central Intelligence (like all previous directors) and the chairman of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board are members. The secretary of defense, three undersecretaries and at least four assistant secretaries are members. The secretaries of the department of housing and urban development, interior, health and human services, and the chief White House public relations man, David Gergen, are members along with the speaker of the House and the majority leader of the Senate." [6]

If Richard Harwood's information is correct, why don't the American people realize the CFR controls the American government? Richard Harwood's article was published on a back page of The Washington Post, the article wasn't mentioned on radio or television, and the article was never quoted by other newspapers. A similar fate has befallen every effort to expose the existence of the secret cabal.

If you would like to verify the fact that most of the major media outlets are owned by "front organizations" affiliated with the secret cabal; i.e. the Trilateral Commission, the CFR, and the Bilderbergs, you should read Professor Ben Bagdikian's book, "The New Media Monopoly" because it identifies the five (or six) international corporations that control 90% of the major media outlets in the United States, [7] and you should also read "The Membership List of the Brotherhood of Darkness," compiled by Radio Liberty, or Robert Gaylon Ross's book, "Who's Who of the Elite." [8] The major corporations are:

Times Warner (AOL) (Trilateral Commission)
Bertelsmann (Trilateral Commission)
Viacom (CBS) (Council on Foreign Relations) (CFR)
Disney (ABC) (CFR)
GE-Comcast (NBC) (CFR)
Fox News: Ruppert Murdoch (CFR)

What is the Trilateral Commission? What is the CFR? Who controls the organizations? Where did they come from? What is their goal?

Before you can understand the answer to those questions, you must learn the purpose and goal of the secret society that Cecil Rhodes founded in 1891 because the CFR, the Bilderbergs, and the Trilateral Commission are descendants of that covert organization.

Professor Carroll Quigley was one of the leading historians of the twentieth century, and taught at Princeton and Harvard before he accepted a position at Georgetown University. Professor Quigley accidentally discovered Cecil Rhodes' secret society. He researched it for twenty years, examined their secret records, and wrote two books about the covert movement. Professor Quigley's first book, "The Anglo-American Establishment," was completed in 1949 or 1950, but it was suppressed for 30 years. His second book, "Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time," was suppressed for 6-8 years, but both books are available today.

How did Professor Quigley learn about the secret society? Sir Alfred Zimmern was a member of the inner core of the Group from 1910 to 1922, but he became disillusioned, and gradually drifted away from the covert movement. Twenty-four years later, Sir Zimmern met Professor Quigley, and told him about the Group, but Zimmern made Quigley promise he wouldn't reveal the source of his information.

How do I know that took place? I visited Georgetown University in 1980, and read the letters Carroll Quigley wrote to Alfred Zimmern and the letters Alfred Zimmern wrote to Carroll Quigley as well as hundreds of other letters and documents. In addition, Professor Quigley's book, "The Anglo-American Establishment," mentions the fact that Alfred Zimmern was a member of the inner circle of the secret society from 1910 to 1922, but didn't reveal the source of that information. [9]

Professor Quigley's second book, "Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time," chronicles the origin of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. Professor Quigley's text is printed in bold type. My analysis is printed in regular type:

"Until 1870 there was no professorship of fine arts at Oxford, but in that year . . . John Ruskin was named to such a chair. He hit Oxford like an earthquake, not so much because he talked about fine arts, but because he talked also about the empire and England's downtrodden masses, and above all because he talked about all three of these things as moral issues. Until the end of the nineteenth century the poverty-stricken masses in the cities of England lived in want, ignorance, and crime very much as they have been described by Charles Dickens. Ruskin spoke to the Oxford undergraduates as members of the privileged, ruling class. He told them that they were the possessors of a magnificent tradition of education, beauty, rule of law, freedom, decency, and self-discipline but that tradition could not be saved, and did not deserve to be saved, unless it could be extended to the lower classes in England itself and to the non-English masses throughout the world. If this precious tradition were not extended to these two great majorities, the minority of upper-class Englishmen would ultimately be submerged by these majorities and the tradition lost. To prevent this, the tradition must be extended to the masses and to the empire." [10]

Professor Ruskin's message appealed to the idealism of many of the young men who heard the lecture, but they didn't realize John Ruskin was deeply involved in the occult, or that they were being recruited into a sinister program that would eventually destroy the British Empire, and the Christian foundation of western civilization. [11]

Despite the fact that Professor Quigley was one of the leading historians of the twentieth century, I am certain he wasn't aware of the spiritual implications of John Ruskin's lecture, or the spiritual force that guided the events that followed.

"Ruskin's message had a sensational impact. His inaugural lecture was copied out in longhand by one undergraduate, Cecil Rhodes, who kept it with him for thirty years.

Rhodes . . . feverishly exploited the diamond and goldfields of South Africa, rose to be prime minister of the Cape Colony, . . . contributed money to political parties, controlled parliamentary seats in both England and in South Africa, and sought to win a strip of British territory across Africa from the Cape of Good Hope to Egypt, and to join these two extremes together with a telegraph line and ultimately with a Cape-to- Cairo Railway. Rhodes inspired devoted support for his goals from others in South Africa and in England. With financial support from Lord Rothschild and Alfred Beit, he was able to monopolize the diamond mines of South Africa as De Beers Consolidated Mines and to build up a great gold mining enterprise as Consolidated Gold Fields." [12]

How did Cecil Rhodes acquire his wealth? Lord Rothschild provided most of the funds that Cecil Rhodes used to acquire the diamond mines and gold production of South Africa. Why did Lord Rothschild provide the money? Cecil Rhodes was a Mason, and Lord Rothschild was deeply involved in the occult. Why is that important? It's important because many of the men who amassed great wealth at that time were Masons, or involved in the occult, and the same situation exists today.

When I examined Professor Carroll Quigley's papers in 1980, I found a copy of Cecil Rhodes' "Confession of Faith." The document was written in 1873, and it stated:

"The idea gleaming and dancing before one's eyes like a will-of-the wisp at last frames itself into a plan. Why should we not form a secret society with but one object the furtherance of the British Empire and the bringing of the whole uncivilized world under British rule for the recovery of the United States, for the making (of) the Anglo-Saxon race but one Empire." [13]

Cecil Rhodes wanted to bring "the whole uncivilized world under British rule," and wanted to unite the world.

"In the middle 1890's Rhodes had a personal income of at least a million pounds sterling a year (then about five million dollars) which was spent so freely for his mysterious purposes that he was usually overdrawn on his account. These purposes centered on his desire to federate the English-speaking people and to bring all the habitable portions of the world under their control. For this purpose Rhodes left part of his great fortune to found the Rhodes Scholarships at Oxford in order to spread the English ruling class tradition throughout the English-speaking world as Ruskin had wanted.

Among Ruskin's most devoted disciples at Oxford were a group of intimate friends including Arnold Toynbee, Alfred (later Lord) Milner, Arthur Glazebrook, George . . . Parkin, Phillip Lyttelton Gell, and Henry . . . Birchenough. These were so moved by Ruskin that they devoted the rest of their lives to carrying out his ideas. A similar group of Cambridge men . . . were also aroused by Ruskin's message and devoted their lives to extension of the British Empire and uplift of England's urban masses as two parts of one project which they called 'extension of the English-speaking idea'. . . .

This association was formally established on February 5, 1891, when Rhodes and Stead organized a secret society of which Rhodes had been dreaming for sixteen years. In this secret society Rhodes was to be leader, Stead, Brett (Lord Esher), and Milner were to form an executive committee; Arthur (Lord) Balfour, (Sir) Harry Johnston, Lord Rothschild, Albert (Lord) Grey, and others were listed as potential members of a 'Circle of Initiates'; while there was to be an outer circle known as the 'Association of Helpers' (later organized by Milner as the Round Table organization)." [14]

How did Professor Quigley learn the details of the formation of Cecil Rhodes' secret society? Cecil Rhodes and William Stead organized the secret society on February 5, 1891, but several years later Stead was expelled because he disagreed with Rhodes' effort to incite the Boer War. As a result, William Stead described the formation of the secret society in his diary, and wrote several articles about the covert organization.

Professor Quigley wrote two books about Cecil Rhodes' secret society. He completed the manuscript of "The Anglo-American Establishment," in 1949 or 1950, but the cabal controlled most of the major publishing houses in the United States, so Professor Quigley couldn't get his book published. When I examined Professor Quigley's papers at Georgetown University in 1980, I found a partial copy of the manuscript, but the complete text of the book wasn't available. "The Anglo-American Establishment" was published the following year (1981), four years after Professor Quigley died, and on the first page of the book, Professor Quigley wrote:

"The Rhodes Scholarships, established by the terms of Cecil Rhodes's seventh will, are known to everyone. What is not so widely known is that Rhodes in five previous wills left his fortune to form a secret society which was to devote itself to the preservation and expansion of the British Empire.

And what does not seem to be known to anyone is that this secret society was created by Rhodes and his principal trustee, Lord Milner, and continues to exist to this day.

To be sure, this secret society is not a childish thing like the Ku Klux Klan, and it does not have any secret robes, secret handclasps, or secret passwords. It does not need any of these, since its members know each other intimately. It probably has no oaths of secrecy nor any formal procedure of initiation. It does, however, exist and holds secret meetings, over which the senior member present presides." [15]

Initially the inner core of the secret society was called "The Circle of Initiates," the second tier was "The Association of Helpers," from 1901 to 1910 the third tier was called "Milner's Kindergarden," and from 1910 to 1920 it was called "The Round Table" or "the Group." [16] The following year (1921) the cabal established the Council on Foreign Relations in the United States and branches of the Royal Institute of International Affairs (RIIA) in the Commonwealth nations. [17] Fifty-two years later (1973) the covert movement established the Trilateral Commission. What did they accomplish? The secret society incited the Boer War, they precipitated and prolonged World War I, they orchestrated World War II, they transferred Eastern Europe and China to the communists, they got the U.S. and Great Britain to fight a no-win-war in Korea and a no-win war in Vietnam, they destroyed the infrastructure of Afghanistan and Iraq, and the modern-day extension of the covert movement is trying to precipitate a war with Iran and the Muslim world. [18] Why do they want to precipitate a war? They believe the chaos generated by the financial crisis and the suffering caused by the coming war will force nations to relinquish their sovereignty. Henry Kissinger said, "The alternative to a new international order is chaos." [19] That has been the quest of the secret societies down through the ages. It was the intent of Cecil Rhodes' secret society, and it is the goal of the Trilateral Commission, the CFR, and the Bilderbergs today. [20]

Senator Barry Goldwater warned the American people about the danger posed by the CFR and the Trilateral Commission in 1979 when he wrote:

"Whereas the Council on Foreign Relations is distinctly national in membership, the Trilateral Commission is international . . . It is intended to be the vehicle for multinational consolidation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the United States." [21]

Does the Trilateral Commission (and the CFR) control the U.S. government today? Yes. Between 1977 and 2008, every president and/or vice president of the United States was a member of the Trilateral Commission: i.e. Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale, George H.W. Bush, Bill Clinton, Al Gore, and Dick Cheney. In addition, during the twenty-one year period (prior to 2009): six of the eight presidents of the World Bank were members of the TC, eight of the 10 U.S. Trade representatives were members of the TC, seven of the twelve secretaries of state were members of the TC, nine of the twelve secretaries of defense were members of the TC, and most of the other key positions in the Republican and Democrat administrations were held by members of the CFR. [22] At the present time TC members hold 11-12 key positions in the Obama Administration and most of the other key positions are held by members of the CFR.

Does the secret cabal exist today? Yes! David Rockefeller, Honorary Chairman of the CFR, and Founder and Honorary Chairman of the North American Chapter of the Trilateral Commission, stated (in his book, Memoirs):

"Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists,' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure - one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it." (Italics and underline added-ed) [23]

In subsequent letters I will explain why there are 20-25 million unemployed people in the U.S., why the federal government gives tax incentives to manufacturers who offshore their production, and the cause of the current economic recession.

I cannot tell you what lies ahead, but I fear the United States will soon be at war with Iran, and there will be chaos on the streets of our nation. What can you do? You can copy and distribute copies of this letter, you can continue your effort to educate the American people, and hopefully you can lead them into a personal relationship with our Lord, Jesus Christ. That is our primary weapon because:

"O God, our help in ages past, our hope for years to come,
our shelter from the stormy blast, and our eternal home!
Under the shadow of Thy throne, Still may we dwell secure;
Sufficient is Thine arm alone, and our defense is sure." [24]

Barbara and I appreciate your faithful support, and your prayers.

Yours in Christ,

Stanley Monteith

THE SECRET CABAL II

"As I pass through my incarnations in every age and race, I make my proper prostrations to the Gods of the Market Place. Peering through reverent fingers I watch them flourish and fall, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings, I notice, outlast them all.

We were living in trees when they met us. They showed us each in turn That Water would certainly wet us, as Fire would certainly burn: But we found them lacking in Uplift, Vision and Breadth of Mind, So we left them to teach the Gorillas while we followed the March of Mankind." Rudyard Kipling, The Gods of the Copybook Headings. [1]

"If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be."

Thomas Jefferson, Letter to Colonel Charles Yancey, January 6, 1816 [2]

"Cecil Rhodes' commitment to a conspiracy to establish World Government was set down in a series of wills described by Frank Aydelotte in his book American Rhodes Scholarships. " Gary Allen, "None Dare Call it Conspiracy," 1971, p. 79 [3]

"The implications in Governor Rockefeller's presentation have become concrete proposals advanced by David Rockefeller's newest international cabal, the Trilateral Commission. Whereas the Council on Foreign Relations is distinctly national in membership, the Trilateral Commission is international. . . . It is intended to be the vehicle for multi-national consolidation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the United States." (Italics added-ed)

Senator Barry Goldwater, "With No Apologies," 1979, p. 280 [4]

"Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists,' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure - one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it." (italics and underline added-ed) David Rockefeller, Memoirs, p. 405, 2002 [5]

I began my April 2010 Radio Liberty letter with four questions:

1. Why are there 20-25 million unemployed people in the United States?
2. Why isn't the federal government enforcing our immigration laws?
3. Why does the federal government give tax incentives to manufacturers that offshore their production and outsource their jobs?
4. Who is responsible for the economic recession that is crippling our nation?

The vast majority of the American people can't answer those questions because there is a conscious effort to conceal the truth. If you want to learn the cause of the high level of unemployment, or why the federal government doesn't enforce the immigration laws, you must recognize the fact that there are two possible explanations for every situation. The problem either occurred by accident (the accidental view of history), or it was planned (the conspiratorial view of history). Gary Allen and Larry Abraham proposed that concept in their book, None Dare Call it Conspiracy. The authors claimed major events are planned, and the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) was (is) a "front" for a secret society that controls the world, [6]

Gary Allen completed his manuscript in 1971, but he couldn't find a publisher because the members of the Council on Foreign Relations controlled most of the major publishing houses in the U.S. at that time, and they didn't want the public to know about their organization. [7] As a result, Gary Allen printed ten million paperback copies of his book, and distributed them by direct mail and through other channels.

Millions of people read None Dare Call It Conspiracy in the 1970s, and learned about the secret society that created the Council on Foreign Relations. Thousand of copies were initially available in used book stores, but they gradually disappeared because (I suspect) the Brotherhood of Darkness (BOD) purchased the books and systematically destroyed them. It is very difficult to find a copy of None Dare Call It Conspiracy in a used book store today. When I wrote this letter, Amazon had 14 new or used copies of the paperback edition of None Dare Call it Conspiracy. What happened to the other 10 million copies of Gary Allen's paperback book?

Does the BOD suppress books today? Certainly. If one of their publishing houses releases a book that reveals the truth, the book is recalled, and the copies are destroyed.

During most of the twentieth century, if an independent publisher released a book that exposed the CFR, the company was purchased, and the book was suppressed. That happened to Professor Quigley's book, Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time. The BOD purchased Macmillan, and "accidentally destroyed" the plates of the first half of Professor Quigley's book. [8] A similar thing happened to Monica Jensen Stevenson's book, Kiss The Boys Goodbye. Monica told me someone purchased the company that republished her book, and "accidentally" shredded 5,000 copies. [9]

In several instances, the Brotherhood of Darkness (BOD) has encouraged people to file libel suits against companies that published books that exposed "the conspiracy." That happened to the company that published Monica Jensen Stevenson's second book, Spite House, and TrineDay, the company that published Lt. Colonel Daniel Marvin's book, The Expendable Elite. [10]

In recent years the situation has changed. Millions of people listen to alternative radio broadcasts every day, and they have learned about the BOD's subversive effort to establish world government, and that is important because:

"If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be." [11]

Thomas Jefferson penned those words in 1816, and they are still true today. If we are to remain free, we must expose the dark spiritual force (the BOD) that controls our nation.

Gary Allen's book, None Dare Call it Conspiracy, is still one of the best sources of information on the origin of the subversive movement that controls the United States, but the book doesn't discuss the Trilateral Commission or the spiritual force that energizes the effort to unite the world.

Gary Allen (and Larry Abraham) wrote:

"Cecil Rhodes' commitment to a conspiracy to establish World Government was set down in a series of wills described by Frank Aydelotte in his book, American Rhodes Scholarships. Aydelotte writes:

'The seven wills which Cecil Rhodes made between the ages of 24 and 46 [Rhodes died at age forty-eight] constitute a kind of spiritual autobiography. . . . Best known are the first (the Secret Society Will. . .) and the last, which established the Rhodes Scholarships. . . .'

In his first will Rhodes states his aim still more specifically: 'The extension of British rule throughout the world . . . the foundation of so great a power as to hereafter render wars impossible and promote the interests of humanity.'

The 'Confession of Faith' enlarges upon these ideas. The model for this proposed secret society was the Society of Jesus, though he mentions also the Masons." [12]

Who was Frank Aydelotte, and why is he very important today? Frank Aydelotte was a Rhodes Scholar, he was president of the Association of Rhodes Trustees, and he wrote a book titled The Vision Of Cecil Rhodes. The following information comes from that book. Frank Aydelotte's words are printed in bold type. My remarks are printed in regular type:

"The seven wills which Cecil Rhodes made between the ages of twenty-four and forty-six constitute a kind of spiritual autobiography. While they contain no reference to the events of his life, they reflect the most important part of him, his ideals and aspirations, and the development of his thoughts as to how those aspirations could best be realized. . . . Best known are the first (the Secret Society Will, written while he was still an undergraduate), and the last, which established the Rhodes Scholarships. The gradual change in Rhodes's thinking which led him to give up his plan for a secret society and turn instead to a great and novel plan of international education can be traced in these interesting documents."

That is a very important passage. Frank Aydelotte claims Cecil Rhodes "gave up his plan for a secret society," but Frank Aydelotte knew that wasn't true because he led the American branch of the globalist movement for many years. He was also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) that was (is) a "front" for the Round Table (Milner) Group, and the Round Table was (is) a "front" for the Association of Helpers, the inner circle of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. [14]

How do we know Cecil Rhodes created a secret society, and that the influence of that movement exists today?

- (1) Cecil Rhodes discussed the secret society in his "Confession of Faith." [15]
- (2) Five of Cecil Rhodes' seven wills mentioned the fact that he wanted to establish a secret society. Rhodes' sixth will didn't mention the secret society because it was organized in 1891. [16]
- (3) William Stead wrote about the secret society after he was expelled from the organization. [17]
- (4) Cecil Rhodes wrote a letter to William Stead that mentions "our Society."
- (5) H.G. Wells described the organization in a fictional book titled The New Machiavelli. [18]
- (6) Frederic Howe met several members of Milner's Kindergarten in 1919. [19]
- (7) The Milner Group (the secret society), and their American counterparts, organized the Royal Institute of International Affairs and the Council on Foreign Relations. [20]
- (8) Alfred Zimmern was a member of the secret society from 1910-1922. [21]
- (9) Professor Quigley "studied it (the secret society-ed) for twenty years, and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960s, to examine its papers and secret records." [22]
- (10) I examined Professor Quigley's papers (1980), and found the records of the secret meetings.
- (11) The major media concealed the existence of the CFR until (about) 2000.
- (12) David Rockefeller organized the Trilateral Commission in 1973 after Gary Allen exposed the CFR in 1972.
- (13) The movement suppressed Professor Quigley's books.

According to Professor Quigley:

"This society has been called by various names. During the first decade or so it was called 'the secret society of Cecil Rhodes,' or 'the dream of Cecil Rhodes.' In the second and third decades of its existence it was known as 'Milner's Kindergarten' (1901-1910) and as 'the Round Table Group' (1910-1920). Since 1920 it has been called by various names, depending on which phase of its activities was being examined. It has been called 'The Times crowd,' 'the Rhodes crowd,' the 'Chatham House crowd,' 'The All Souls group,' and 'the Cliveden set.'" [23]

Professor Quigley discussed the man who led the American contingent of the globalist movement:

"At the time the president of Swarthmore College was Frank Aydelotte, the most important member of the Milner Group in the United States since the death of George Louis Beer. Dr. Aydelotte was one of the original Rhodes Scholars, attending Brasenose in 1905-1907. He was president of Swarthmore from 1921 to 1940; has been American secretary to the Rhodes Trustees since 1918; has been president of the American Association of Rhodes Scholars since 1930; has been a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation since 1922; and was a member of the Council on Foreign Relations for many years. In 1937, along with three other members of the Milner Group, he received from Oxford . . . the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law." [24]

Frank Aydelotte described the incident that changed Cecil Rhodes' life, and fashioned the world we live in today:

"Two of Rhodes's biographers, who knew him most intimately, Sir Herbert Baker and Sir James McDonald, believe that Rhodes found the inspiration for that great dream of his in the teaching of John Ruskin. . . . Ruskin was teaching and writing in the first enthusiasm of his professorship: his Inaugural Address had been delivered and published in 1870. . . . Ruskin's theme was the destiny of England. . . . He asks himself what are the virtues of the English and what the fate of England will be. His answer to these questions was a challenge to his youthful hearers:" [25]

Professor Ruskin proclaimed:

"There is a destiny now possible to us - the highest ever set before a nation to be accepted or refused. We are still undegenerate in race; a race mingled of the best northern blood. We are not yet dissolute in temper, but still have the firmness to govern, and the grace to obey. We have been taught a religion of pure mercy, which we must either now betray, or learn to defend by fulfilling. And we are rich in an inheritance of honour, bequeathed to us through a thousand years of noble history, which it should be our daily thirst to increase with splendid avarice, so that Englishmen, if it be a sin to covet honour, should be the most offending souls alive.

And this is what she must either do, or perish: she must found colonies as fast and as far as she is able, formed of her most energetic and worthiest men; - seizing every piece of fruitful waste ground she can set her foot on, and there teaching these her colonists that their chief virtue is to be fidelity to their country, and that their first aim is to be to advance the power of England by land and sea: and that, though they live on a distant plot of ground, they are no more to consider themselves therefore disfranchised from their native land, than the sailors of her fleet do, because they float on distant waves." [26]

The concept inspired Cecil Rhodes. He recorded John Ruskin's words in longhand, and carried them with him during the remainder of his life. Frank Aydelotte continued:

"So Ruskin: now Rhodes. In a curiously outspoken document, 'The Confession of Faith,' which he wrote about the time that he made his first will in 1877, Rhodes outlines the great purpose of his life:" [27] He wrote: 'It often strikes a man to enquire what is the chief good in life: to one the thought comes that it is a happy marriage, to another great wealth, and, as each seizes on his idea, for that he more or less works for the rest of existence. To myself thinking over the same question the wish came to render myself useful to my country. I then asked myself how could I, and, after reviewing the various methods, I have felt that at the present day we are actually limiting our children and perhaps bringing into the world half the human beings we might owe to the lack of country for them to inhabit, that if we had retained America there would at the present moment be many millions more of English living.'" [28] Frank Aydelotte deleted the section of Rhodes' "Confession of Faith" that stated:

"The idea gleaming and dancing before one's eyes like a will-of-the-wisp at last frames itself into a plan. Why should we not form a secret society with but one object the furtherance of the British Empire and the bringing of the whole uncivilised world under British rule for the recovery of the United States for the making of the Anglo-Saxon race but one Empire. What a dream, but yet it is probable, it is possible." [29]

"In his first will Rhodes states his aim still more specifically:

"The extension of British rule throughout the world, the perfecting of a system of emigration from the United Kingdom and of colonization by British subjects of all lands wherein the means of livelihood are attainable by energy, labour and enterprise, and especially the occupation by British settlers of the entire Continent of Africa, The Holy Land, the valley of the Euphrates, the Islands of Cyprus and Candia, the whole of South America, the islands of the Pacific not heretofore possessed by Great Britain, the whole of the Malay Archipelago, the seaboard of China and Japan, the ultimate recovery of the United States of America as an integral part of the British Empire, the consolidation of the whole Empire, the inauguration of a system of Colonial Representation in the Imperial Parliament which may tend to weld together the disjointed members of the Empire, and finally the foundation of so great a power as to hereafter render wars impossible and promote the best interests of humanity.'" [30]

Cecil Rhodes claimed he wanted to create "the foundation of so great a power as to hereafter render wars impossible," but that wasn't true. Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Milner (the British High Commissioner of South Africa) precipitated the Boer War because they wanted to expand the British Empire. The English army sustained 100,000 casualties in the war, and over twenty-eight thousand Afrikaner women and children were starved and/or died of typhoid fever in Milner's prison camps. Rhodes and Milner wanted the carnage to continue, but the British Parliament intervened and stopped the brutal war.

How can you verify that information?

- (1) Professor Quigley's book, Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time, has an excellent section on the Boer War.
- (2) Thomas Pakenham's book, The Boer War, is an excellent source of information.
- (3) Professor Quigley's book, The Anglo-American Establishment contains the letter that Cecil Rhodes wrote to William Stead during the Boer War.

"That is the curse which will be fatal to our ideas - insubordination. Do not you think it is very disobedient of you? How can our Society be worked if each one sets himself up as the sole judge of what ought to be done? Just look at the position here. We three are in South Africa. . . . I myself, Milner, and Garrett, all of whom learned their politics from you. We are on the spot, and we are unanimous in declaring this war to be necessary. You have never been in South Africa, and yet . . . you fling yourself into a violent opposition to the war." [31]

Cecil Rhodes died before the war ended, but the senseless carnage didn't deter the members of Rhodes' secret society because most of them were deeply involved in the occult. Alfred Milner (Lord Milner) inherited Cecil Rhodes' wealth. He assumed leadership of the secret society, controlled the Rhodes Scholarship fund, and brought thousands of young men to Oxford University to learn the importance of world government.

Next month I will tell you how the Milner Group (the secret society) precipitated World War I, and created World War II.

What can you do? (1) You can copy and distribute my letters. (2) You can pray for peace. (3) You can pray for the people in the Near East and the Middle East, and (4) You can pray for the brave members of the U.S. military who will fight another senseless war.

I suggest you read and circulate my August 2005 Radio Liberty letter because it contains an article written by a Marine General who was awarded two Congressional Medals of Honour.

What else can you do? If you are in a position to help Radio Liberty, it would be greatly appreciated at this time.

Also, remember the words Horatio Spafford wrote in 1873 as he passed over the area of the ocean where he had shortly before lost his four daughters in a shipwreck:

"When peace, like a river, attendeth my way,
When sorrows like seal billows roll;
Whatever my lot, Thou has taught me to say,
It is well, it is well with my soul.

Though Satan should buffet, tho' trials should come,
Let this blest assurance control,
That Christ has regarded my helpless estate,
And hath shed His own blood for my soul." [32]

I hope those words will sustain you during the difficult times that lie ahead.

Barbara and I appreciate your loyal support and your faithful prayers.

Yours in Christ,

THE SECRET CABAL III

"A global elite has emerged over the past several decades that has vastly more power than any other group on the planet. . . . That such a group exists is indisputable. Heads of state, CEOs of the world's largest companies, media barons, billionaires who are actively involved in their investments, technology entrepreneurs, oil potentates, hedge fund managers, private equity investors, top military commanders, a select few religious leaders, a handful of renowned writers, scientists, and artists, even terrorist leaders and master criminals, meet the above criteria for membership I identified just over 6,000 people who qualify." David Rothkopf, Superclass: The Global Power Elite and the World They Are Making, 2008. preface. [1]

"We make war that we may live in peace."

Aristotle, 384-322 B.C. [2]

"In his first will Rhodes states his aim still more specifically: 'The extension of British rule throughout the world, the perfecting of a system of emigration from the United Kingdom and of colonization by British subjects of all lands wherein the means of livelihood are attainable . . . and finally the foundation of so great a power as to here- after render wars impossible and promote the best interests of humanity.'"

Frank Aydelotte, The Vision of Cecil Rhodes, 1946, p. 5 [3]

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time magazine, and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost forty years. . . It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subject to the bright lights of publicity during these years . . . the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government which will never again know war but only peace and prosperity for the whole of humanity."

Attributed to David Rockefeller, Address to the Bilderberg meeting, 1991 [4]

"War is at best barbarism. . . . Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell."

Attributed to General William Sherman, June 19, 1879 [5]

There are four important questions that you should be prepared to answer.

- (1) Why is the world changing?
- (2) Why did the U.S. participate in World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, and the first Gulf War?
- (3) Why is the U.S. fighting in the Middle East today?
- (4) Who funds the Islamic terrorist movement?

(1) Why is the world changing? The world is changing because a small group of men and women direct the course of world events. David Rothkopf is a member of the CFR. He was managing director of Kissinger and Associates, and he knows the men and women who run the world. He wrote:

"A global elite has emerged over the past several decades that has vastly more power than any other group on the planet. . . .

That such a group exists is indisputable. Heads of state, CEOs of the world's largest companies, media barons, billionaires who are actively involved in their investments, technology entrepreneurs, oil potentates, hedge fund managers, private equity investors, top military commanders, . . . artists, even terrorist leaders and master criminals, meet the above criteria for membership. . . . I identified just over 6,000 people who qualify." [6]

Why did David Rothkopf write a book about the "Global Elite," and why did the Establishment publish, promote, and distribute a book that exposed the Ruling Class? I believe they wanted to divert public attention from the Council on Foreign Relations, the Bilderbergs, the Trilateral Commission, and the other occult organizations that direct the course of world affairs. After David Rothkopf gained his readers' confidence, he ridiculed the people who believe the Trilateral Commission is a subversive organization, and wrote:

""The Trilateral Commission is a joke' said one especially dismissive former member, who was a senior official in several Republican U.S. administrations. 'It's a bunch of has-beens who do not have power except to convene themselves - and to feel a little bit more important because they convened themselves.'" [7]

David Rothkopf failed to mention the fact that between 1977 and 2008:

- Every president and/or Vice-President of the United States was a member of the North American Chapter of the Trilateral Commission.
- Six out of the eight presidents of the World Bank were members.
- Eight out of the ten U.S. Trade Representatives were members.
- Seven out of the twelve U.S. Secretaries of State were members.
- Nine out of the twelve Secretaries of Defense were members.
- At least eleven key people in the Obama administration are members today. [8]

Are all those people "has-beens?"

(2) Why did the U.S. participate in World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, and the first Gulf War?

World War I was fought to establish the League of Nations, and end war. World War II was fought to establish the United Nations, and end war. The Korean War, the Vietnam War, and the First Gulf War were fought to establish America's dominance, and end war.

(3) Why is the U.S. fighting in the Middle East today?

I believe the current conflict in the Middle East is a prelude to a much larger war (World War III) that will be fought to end war. The concept isn't new. Aristotle said:

"We make war that we may live in peace." [9]

(4) Who funds the Islamic terrorist movement?

Prior to the 9/11 attack the Islamic terrorist movement was primarily funded by Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, and the CIA. [10] At the present time the U.S. finances Pakistan. The Pakistani government finances their army, the army finances their intelligence agency (the ISI), and the ISI finances the Islamic terrorist movement. The ISI is also funded by the CIA. [11] Why is the U.S. funding a terrorist movement that is killing American soldiers in Afghanistan today?

This series of Radio Liberty letters deals with the secret cabal that controls the United States, and their effort to unite the world. That was the goal of the ancient secret societies, the Mystery Religions, the Kabbalah, the Gnostics, the Knights Templar, the Freemasons, and the Illuminati, but they invariably failed. Then, in 1877, a young man named Cecil Rhodes devised a plan that has succeeded, and, barring divine intervention, the occult movement will establish a world government.

Cecil Rhodes' inspiration came from John Ruskin who taught at Oxford University. Ruskin was deeply involved in the occult. [12] Cecil Rhodes' financing (primarily) came from Lord Rothschild who was involved in the occult. Cecil Rhodes purchased most of the major gold and diamond mines of South Africa, amassed a fortune, and used his money to fund a secret society, and the Rhodes Scholarship Trust. [13] Cecil Rhodes joined the Freemasons, and swore the required occult oaths. [14] Cecil Rhodes' Plan was modified after he died, but his objective wasn't changed. Cecil Rhodes wanted to unite the world. [15]

Frank Aydelotte led the Milner Group (the American contingent of the secret society) during the first half of the twentieth century. His book, The Vision of Cecil Rhodes, reproduced part of Cecil Rhodes' first will. Frank Aydelotte wrote:

"In his first will Rhodes states his aim still more specifically: 'The extension of British rule throughout the world, the perfecting of a system of emigration from the United Kingdom and of colonization by British subjects of all lands wherein the means of livelihood are attainable . . . and finally the foundation of so great a power as to here- after render wars impossible and promote the best interests of humanity.'" [16]

How did Cecil Rhodes pursue his goal? He precipitated the Boer War because he wanted to create a peaceful world. What happened? The British army sustained 100,000 casualties, 18,000

- 28,000 women and children died in the concentration camps, and large regions of South Africa were destroyed. [17]

Professor Quigley's book, Tragedy and Hope, describes the events that took place at that time, and similar events take place today.

Professor Quigley's words are reproduced in bold type. My response is printed in regular type.

"By 1895 the Transvaal Republic presented an acute problem. All political control was in the hands of a rural, backward, Bible-reading, racist minority of Boers, while all economic wealth was in the hands of a violent, aggressive majority of foreigners (Uitlanders), most of whom lived in the new city of Johannesburg. The Uitlanders, who were twice as numerous as the Boers and owned two-thirds of the land and nine-tenths of the wealth of the country, were prevented from participating in political life or from becoming citizens (except after fourteen years' residence) and were irritated by a series of minor pinpricks and extortions (such as tax differentials, a dynamite monopoly, and transportation restrictions) and by rumors that the Transvaal president, Paul Kruger, was intriguing to obtain some kind of German intervention and protection." [18]

Professor Quigley referred to the Boers as "a rural, backward, Bible-reading, racist minority" because they were Christians, many were poor, and Professor Quigley supported Cecil Rhodes' effort to unite the world. Elsewhere, Professor Quigley wrote (on page 950 of Tragedy and Hope):

"I know of the operations of this network because I have studied it for twenty years, and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960's, to examine its papers and secret records. I have no aversion to it or to most of its aims and have, for much of my life, been close to it and to many of its instruments . . . in general my chief difference of opinion is that it wishes to remain unknown, and I believe its role in history is significant enough to be known." [19]

"At this point in 1895, Rhodes made his plans to overthrow Kruger's government by an uprising in Johannesburg, financed by himself and Beit, and led by his brother Frank Rhodes, Abe Bailey, and other supporters, followed by an invasion of the Transvaal by a force led by Jameson from Bechuanaland and Rhodesia." [20]

Cecil Rhodes bribed officials, and got several members of his secret society placed in key positions in the English government because he wanted support for the coming revolution in Johannesburg, and the invasion of the Transvaal. [21]

Professor Quigley wrote:

"Flora Shaw used the The Times to prepare public opinion in England, while Albert Grey (a member of Rhodes' secret society - ed) and others negotiated with Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain for the official support that was necessary. Unfortunately, when the revolt fizzled out in Johannesburg, Jameson raided anyway in an effort to revive it, and was easily captured by the Boers. The public officials involved denounced the plot, loudly proclaimed their surprise at the event, and were able to whitewash most of the participants in the subsequent parliamentary inquiry." [22]

Similar things have taken place in the U.S.

- The Congressional investigation of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor concealed the truth.
- The Warren Commission concealed the truth.
- The 9/11 Commission concealed the truth.

"Rhodes was stopped only temporarily. . . . For almost two years he and his friends stayed quiet, waiting for the storm to blow over. Then they began to act again. Propaganda, most of it true, about the plight of Uitlanders in the Transvaal Republic flooded England and South Africa from Flora Shaw, W.T. Stead, Edmund Garrett and others. . . ." [23]

Cecil Rhodes recognized the importance of the media. Flora Shaw wrote for The Times (in London), W.T. Stead published The Pall Mall Gazette and Review of Reviews that were read throughout the British Empire, and Edmund Garrett published The Cape Times, the major newspaper in South Africa.

Cecil Rhodes had Alfred Milner (second in command of the secret society) appointed high commissioner of South Africa, and he precipitated the Boer War. Professor Quigley wrote:

"Milner was made high commissioner of South Africa (1897); Brett (one of the four founding members of Rhodes' secret society - ed) worked his way into the confidence of the monarchy to become its chief political adviser during a period of more than twenty-five years (he wrote almost daily letters of advice to King Edward during his reign, 1901-1910." [24]

A similar situation existed in the United States. Colonel Edward Mandell House met Woodrow Wilson in 1911, gained his confidence, controlled President Wilson's administration from 1913-1918, and influenced other world leaders during that era. [25]

Fifteen years later (in 1932) Colonel House met Franklin Delano Roosevelt, gained his confidence, convinced FDR he should expand the power of the federal government, and "was called by some the Hidden Master of the New Deal."

How did Colonel House control President Wilson and President Roosevelt? He was a mystic, and he was deeply involved in the occult. [26]

Colonel House (and other members of the Inquiry) met the members of the Milner Group (Rhodes' secret society) at Versailles, and established the Council on Foreign Relations that controlled the U.S. government until David Rockefeller organized the Trilateral Commission in 1973. [27]

"By a process whose details are still obscure, a brilliant, young graduate of Cambridge, Jan Smuts, who had been a vigorous supporter of Rhodes and acted as his agent in Kimberley as late as 1895 and who was one of the most important members of the Rhodes-Milner group in the period 1908-1950, went to the Transvaal and, by violent anti-British agitation, became state secretary of that country (although a British subject) and chief political adviser to President Kruger. . . ." [28]

I believe Cecil Rhodes sent Jan Smuts to the Transvaal to precipitate the Boer War. How did Jan Smuts incite the conflict? He gained the confidence of President Paul Kruger, ranted against the British government, criticized (his friend) Alfred Milner, the High Commissioner of South Africa, became secretary of state, and convinced President Kruger that the British troop movements that were taking place foreshadowed a British invasion of the Transvaal Republic. As a result, Paul Kruger told Jan Smuts to send an ultimatum to Alfred Milner, and that precipitated the Boer War.

A similar situation exists in Iran today. President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad makes ridiculous statements, threatens Israel, rants against the United States, and does everything he can to foment a war with the U.S. that will destroy his nation.

"Milner made provocative troop movements on the Boer frontiers in spite of the vigorous protests of his commanding general in South Africa, who had to be removed; and, finally, war was precipitated when Smuts drew up an ultimatum insisting that the British troop movements cease and when this was rejected by Milner." [29]

Cecil Rhodes' agent, Jan Smuts, wrote the ultimatum that precipitated the Boer War.

"The Boer War (1899-1902) was one of the most important events in British imperial history. The ability of 40,000 Boer farmers to hold off ten times as many British for three years, inflicting a series of defeats on them over that period, destroyed faith in British power. Although the Boer republics were defeated and annexed in 1902, Britain's confidence was so shaken that it made a treaty with Japan in the same year providing that if either signer became engaged in war with two enemies in the Far East the other signer would come to the rescue." [30]

The agreement led to the Russo-Japanese war (1904-1905) that killed 130,000 soldiers and 20,000 civilians.

Why did Cecil Rhodes incite the Boer War? He wanted to establish "the foundation of so great a power as to hereafter render wars impossible and promote the best interests of humanity."

Eighty-six years after the Russo-Japanese War ended David Rockefeller is said to have addressed the Bilderberg meeting held in Sand, Germany, and stated:

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time magazine, and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost forty years. . . . It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subject to the bright lights of publicity during these years. . . . But the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government which will never again know war but only peace and prosperity for the whole of humanity." [31]

Note the similarity between the words in Cecil Rhodes' first will, and David Rockefeller's statement.

- Why did Colonel House, J.P. Morgan, and the members of the Inquiry plunge the United States into World War I?
- Why did the CFR (and other) American corporations build the military equipment the Nazis used during World War II? (I will cover that subject next month).
- Why did the U.S. fight no-win wars in Korea, Vietnam, and the Persian Gulf?

Many of the men who control the wealth of our nation are involved in the occult, and they serve Lucifer who wants to destroy God's highest creation. We must oppose them because:

"War is at best barbarism. . . . Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell." (attributed to General Sherman in 1877) [32]

And Rudyard Kipling wrote:

"When the Cambrian measures were forming,
They promised perpetual peace.
They swore, if we gave them our weapons,
that the wars of the tribes would cease.
But when we disarmed They sold us and delivered us bound to our foe,
And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said:
"Stick to the Devil you know."
Rudyard Kipling, The Gods of the Copybook Headings [33]

We must tell the American people about the current effort to incite a war with Iran, and the dire consequences of the coming war. Will the public heed our warning? Our job is to tell them, and recognize the fact that the battle is the Lord's because:

"My sin - oh the bliss of this glorious tho't -
My sin - not in part but the whole,
Is nailed to the cross and I bear it no more,

Praise the Lord, praise the Lord, O my soul!
And, Lord, haste the day when the faith shall be sight,
The clouds be rolled back as a scroll,
The trump shall resound and the Lord shall descend,
'Even so' it is well with my soul." [34]

That is our wonderful promise.

Barbara and I appreciate your loyal support, and your faithful prayers.

Yours in Christ,

Stanley Monteith

THE SECRET CABAL IV

The Origin of World War I

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time magazine, and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost forty years. . . . It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subject to the bright lights of publicity during these years . . . the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government which will never again know war but only peace and prosperity for the whole of humanity." Attributed to David Rockefeller, Bilderberg meeting, 1991 [1]

"One evening Sir Edward Grey (not then in office) made a speech advocating the policy of the Entente, which had not yet been adopted by the Government. I stated my objections to the policy very forcibly, and pointed out the likelihood of its leading to war, but no one agreed with me, so I resigned from the club. It will be seen that I began my opposition to the first war at the earliest possible moment." Bertrand Russell, "The Autobiography of Bertrand Russell," p. 156. [2]

"Delcasse also has a large share in the guilt for the World War, and Grey (Sir Edward Grey-ed) an even larger share, since he was the spiritual leader of the "encirclement policy," which he faithfully pushed forward and brought to completion, as the 'legacy' of his dead sovereign." Kaiser Wilhelm II, The Kaiser's Memoirs, p. 257 (1921) [3]

"I have been informed that an important role was played in the preparation of the World War directed against the monarchical Central Powers by the policy of the international 'Great Orient Lodge.'" Ibid. [4]

Are you prepared for the difficult period that lies ahead? If you want to survive the coming turmoil, you must understand the origin of the bloody conflicts of the twentieth century because "those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." Why is the information important today? It's important because the covert movement that precipitated the Boer War, World War I, the Russian Revolution, World War II, the Communist takeover of China, the Korean War, the Communist takeover in Cuba, the Vietnam War, the Iranian revolution, the First Gulf War, and the Second Gulf War - that group (the Brotherhood of Darkness - BOD) is trying to precipitate a genocidal war with the Muslim world. If they succeed, they will bankrupt our nation, and destroy Western civilization.

Why does the BOD want to incite a war with the Muslim world? They believe the resulting chaos will end national sovereignty, and unite the world. [5]

David Rockefeller revealed the BOD's goal when he addressed the Bilderberg meeting in 1991:

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time magazine, and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost forty years. . . . It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subject to the bright lights of publicity during these years . . . the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government which will never again know war but only peace and prosperity for the whole of humanity." [6]

Two French newspapers published the statement, and Hilaire du Berrier verified it, but David Rockefeller's statement didn't appear in American publications because the men and women who control the U.S. media attend Bilderberg meetings, and they wanted to conceal the existence of the subversive organization.

David Rockefeller reiterated his goal (the BOD plan) in 2002, in his autobiography where he wrote: (page 405 of Memoirs)

"For more than a century ideological extremists at either end of the political spectrum have seized upon well-publicized incidents such as my encounter with Castro to attack the Rockefeller family for the inordinate influence they claim we wield over American political and economic institutions. Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure -one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it." (italics added - ed) [7]

My June 2010 Radio Liberty letter discussed Cecil Rhodes' secret society (the Brotherhood of Darkness - BOD), and their effort to unite the world. The covert group incited the Boer War (1899) because they wanted to expand the British Empire, and end war. The English army sustained 100,000 casualties, the Boer army lost 7,000 men, and 18,000-28,000 women and children died in concentration camps, but the BOD won that conflict, and began planning their next war. [8]

If you try to determine the cause of World War I, you won't find a logical explanation because the BOD controlled most of the major media outlets, and the truth. What, or who, was responsible for the Great War? Professor Carroll Quigley studied that period, and compiled a list of those who controlled the British government at that time. Some were members of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. They were Imperialists, and all were close to the Milner Group.

Professor Quigley wrote:

"After the split in the Liberal Party in 1886, it was the members of the Cecil Bloc who became Unionists. . . . (and - ed) as a result, the Cecil Bloc became increasingly a political force. . . . almost all the other members of the Bloc were Unionists or Conservatives. The chief exceptions were the four leaders of the Liberal Party . . . who were strong imperialists: Rosebery, Asquith, Edward Grey, and Haldane. These four supported the Boer War, grew increasingly anti- German, supported the World War in 1914, and were close to the Milner Group politically, intellectually, and socially." [9]

Why is that important? It's important because Cecil Rhodes' secret society (and their allies) incited the Boer War, and many of the same men (the Milner Group) incited World War I. Some were members of a dinner club called the "Coefficients" that played an important role in British politics, [10] and there were other men who wanted a war. Some were Masons, others were affiliated with the occult movement that permeated the world at that time.

Professor Quigley listed the men who controlled the British government when the Great War began:

Lord Robert Cecil. He was a wealthy banker, held several important posts in the British government during the First World War, was a member of the Coefficients, and a member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. [11]

Lord Herbert H. Asquith. He was British Prime Minister from 1908-1916, helped Sir Edward Grey precipitate World War I, and was a friend of Lord Milner. His wife, Margaret Asquith, had a brief affair with Lord Milner, and she often had dinner with Arthur Balfour who was a member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society.

[12] Sir Edward Grey. He was the British Foreign Minister from 1905 to 1916. He devised the secret treaty that precipitated World War I, was a member of the Coefficients, a close friend of Lord Milner, and he may have been a covert member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. [13]

Viscount Haldane. He was Secretary of State for War, and sent military supplies to France prior to World War I. He was a member of the Coefficients, and was a close friend of Lord Milner. [14]

Lord Rosebery. He was Prime Minister from 1894-1895 (during the Jameson Raid). He was married to Lord Rothschild's daughter, and was a member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. [15]

Lord Rothschild. He was a founding member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society, and when he resigned, his son-in law (Lord Rosebery) replaced him. [16]

Lord Alfred Milner. He led the covert movement (Rhodes' secret society) after Cecil Rhodes died in 1902. He was the second most powerful man in the British government after 1916 (during the last two years of the Great War), and he was a member of the Coefficients. [17]

What was the "Coefficients," and why was it important? H.G. Wells' book, Experiment in Autobiography, states:

"The only representative of that Boer War Imperialist group I ever met was Lord Milner. He seemed to me a bold-thinking man, hampered by politic reservations. . . . I came across him in a curious little talking and dining club, the 'Coefficients,' which met monthly throughout the session (of Parliament - ed) between 1902 and 1908 to discuss the future of this perplexing, promising, and frustrating Empire of ours.

In certain respects our club represented something that seems now, I think, to have faded out from contemporary English life. It had the gestures if not the spirit of free interrogation. It had an air of asking 'What are we doing with the world? What are we going to do?'" [18]

Most of the members were Imperialists, and many of them wanted another war.

"The club included the queerest diversity of brains. Its foundation was, I believe, suggested by Mrs. Sidney Webb. It was inaugurated by a meeting in the flat of Sir Edward Grey and Mr. Haldane . . . in Whitehall Court and the first assembly included such incongruous elements as Bertrand Russell . . . Sidney Webb . . . Leo Maxse (already in 1902 denouncing the German Peril and demanding the Great War), . . . L.S. Amery, and H.J. Mackinder. . . . Later on we were joined by Lord Robert Cecil, Michael Sadler, . . . Lord Milner, John Hugh Smith, Colonel Repington . . . and others." [19]

The members were bankers, financiers, military leaders, and socialists, and they controlled the British government at that time.

"The British Empire, I said, had to be the precursor of a world-state or nothing. I appealed to geography. It was possible for the Germans and Austrians to hold together in their Zollverein because they were placed like a clenched fist in the center of Europe. But the British Empire was like an open hand all over the world. It had no natural economic unity and it could maintain no artificial economic unity. Its essential unity must be a unity of great ideas embodied in the English speech and literature. . . . I was still clinging to the dear belief that the English-speaking community might play the part of leader and mediator towards a world commonweal. It was to be a free-trading, free-speaking, liberating flux for mankind. Russell, Pember Reeves and Webb and possibly Haldane and Grey had, I think, a less clearly expressed disposition in the same direction." [20]

Sir Edward Grey attended the monthly meetings, and in 1905 he presented the plan that precipitated World War I. Bertrand Russell described that event:

"In 1902 I became a member of a small dining club called 'The Coefficients', got up by Sidney Webb for the purpose of considering political questions from a more or less Imperialist point of view. It was in this club that I first became acquainted with H.G. Wells, of whom I had never heard until then. His point of view was more sympathetic to me than that of any other member. Most of the members, in fact, shocked me profoundly. . . . One evening Sir Edward Grey (not then in office) made a speech advocating the policy of the Entente, which had not yet been adopted by the Government. I stated my objections to the policy very forcibly, and pointed out the likelihood of its leading to war, but no one agreed with me, so I resigned from the club. It will be seen that I began my opposition to the first war at the earliest possible moment." [21]

Sir Edward Grey was appointed British Foreign Secretary in 1906, and implemented his plan to incite the first World War. He got the leaders of France and Russia to sign a secret treaty that stated that if either country was attacked (by Germany or Austria-Hungary), they would join England, and crush their opponent. Sir Edward concealed the existence of the treaty, and lied to Parliament when he was asked about the secret agreement. [22]

When I researched Professor Quigley's papers at Georgetown University, I found a notation, presumably written by Cecil Rhodes, that stated: "I want both Greys." I suspect the note referred to Albert Grey (Earl Grey) and Sir Edward Grey, but Professor Quigley didn't mention Sir Edward when he compiled his list of the members of Cecil Rhodes' secret society. Was Sir Edward Grey a covert member of the secret organization? I don't know, but that isn't important. Sir Edward was closely aligned with the secret society during the Boer War, he was aligned with the Milner Group, and he implemented the "encirclement policy" that precipitated World War I. [23]

Kaiser Wilhelm believed Sir Edward Grey incited the war. The Kaiser wrote:

"Delcasse (the French Foreign Minister - ed) also has a large share in the guilt for the World War, and Grey an even larger share, since he was the spiritual leader of the 'encircle- ment policy,' which he faithfully pushed forward and brought to completion." [24]

Sir Edward's friend, Viscount Haldane (the Secretary of War) sent military supplies to France and Belgium before the war began. Kaiser Wilhelm wrote:

"When our troops advanced in 1914 they found, in northern France and along the Belgian frontier, great stores of English soldiers' greatcoats. According to statements by the inhabitants, these were placed there during the last years of peace. Most of the English infantrymen who were made prisoners by us in the summer of 1914 had no greatcoats; when asked why, they answered, quite naively: 'We are to find our greatcoats in the stores at Maubeuge, Le Quesnoy, etc., in the north of France and in Belgium.'

It was the same regarding maps. In Maubeuge great quantities of English military maps of northern France and Belgium were found by our men; copies of these have been shown to me. The names of places were printed in French and English. . . . These maps date from 1911 and were engraved at Southampton.

The stores were established by England, with the permission of the French and Belgian Governments, before the war, in the midst of peace." [25]

Sir Edward Grey, Lord Asquith, Lord Haldane, Lord Cecil, and the Milner Group precipitated the First World War, but other people helped them.

Professor Quigley knew the Milner Group was primarily responsible for the Great War, but he didn't provide that information when he described the onset of World War I: (Tragedy and Hope, page 224)

"Vienna received news of the assassination of the heir to the Hapsburg throne on June 28, 1914. The Austrians were convinced of the complicity of the Serbian government although they had no real proof. We now know that high officials of the Serbian government knew of the plot and did little to prevent it." [26]

Why didn't the Serbian government try to prevent the assassination? I suspect some "high officials" were Freemasons who wanted to destroy the European monarchies.

Dr. Dennis Cuddy covered that subject in his book, Now is the Dawning of the New Age New World Order. He wrote:

"The First World War began August 1-4, 1914, because of the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand on June 28 by the 'Black Hand,' which James Billington in Fire in the Minds of Men claims was a 'progeny of Freemasonry.' The assassin was Gavrilo Princep, and in Mary Edith Durham's The Sarajevo Crime (1925), one learns that Princep testified at his trial that his colleague, Ciganovitch, 'told me he was a Freemason. . . .[and] told me that the Heir Apparent (Franz Ferdinand) had been condemned to death by a Freemason's lodge." [27]

Kaiser Wilhelm believed the Masons were partially responsible for the Great War. He wrote:

"I have been informed that an important role was played in the preparation of the World War directed against the monarchical Central Powers by the policy of the international 'Great Orient Lodge'; a policy extending over many years and always envisaging the goal at which it aimed. But the German Great Lodges, I was furthermore told - with two exceptions wherein non-German financial interests are paramount and which maintains secret connection with the 'Great Orient' in Paris - had no relationship to the 'Great Orient.' They were entirely loyal and faithful, according to the assurance give me by the distinguished German Freemason who explained to me this whole inter- relationship, which had, until then, been unknown to me. He said that in 1917 an inter- national meeting of the lodges of the 'Great Orient' was held, after which there was a subsequent conference in Switzerland; at this the following program was adopted: Dismemberment of Austria-Hungary, democratization of Germany, elimination of the House of Hapsburg, abdication of the German Emperor, restitution of Alsace-Lorraine to France, union of Galicia with Poland, elimination of the Pope and the Catholic Church, elimination of every state Church in Europe." [28]

Was Professor Quigley aware of the fact that the Masons wanted to destroy the European monarchies, and the Catholic Church? I have read almost everything that Professor Quigley wrote about Cecil Rhodes, his secret society, and the covert organizations they spawned: i.e. the Milner Group, the Round Table Group, the Royal Institute for International Affairs, and the Council on Foreign Relations. When I went to Georgetown University in 1980, I researched Professor Quigley's papers. I talked to his wife, his mistress, his closest friend, and I learned a great deal about Professor Quigley. For that reason, I am certain he wasn't aware of the fact that Cecil Rhodes, Lord Milner, and many of their followers, were either Masons, or involved in the occult movement that existed at that time. [29]

There is a great deal more to this story, but it will have to wait until next month.

What is taking place today?

It appears the BOD has postponed their effort to incite a war with Iran.

Unemployment is rising, the U.S. economy is collapsing, and a growing number of people realize something is seriously wrong.

"The Gods of the Market" may have lost control of the U.S. economy, and if that is true, we may be able to defeat them.

Rudyard Kipling didn't believe in Christianity, or "Eternal Truth", but I believe he was inspired to write:

"On the first Feminian Sandstones we were promised the Fuller Life (Which started by loving our neighbour and ended by loving his wife) Till our women had no more children and the men lost reason and faith, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "The Wages of Sin is Death."

In the Carboniferous Epoch we were promised abundance for all, By robbing selected Peter to pay for collective Paul; But, though we had plenty of money, there was nothing our money could buy, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "If you don't work you die."

Then the Gods of the Market tumbled, and their smooth-tongued wizards withdrew And the hearts of the meanest were humbled and began to believe it was true That All is not Gold that Glitters, and Two and Two make Four And the Gods of the Copybook Headings limped up to explain it once more." [30]

We are entering a difficult period, but that will provide an opportunity to bring people to our Lord.

Barbara and I appreciate your loyal support, and your faithful prayers.

Yours in Christ,

Stanley Monteith

THE SECRET CABAL V

"The frivolity of this group can be seen in Margot Tennant's statement that she obtained for Milner his appointment to the chairmanship of the Board of Inland Revenue in 1892 merely by writing to Balfour and asking for it after she had a too brief romantic interlude with Milner in Egypt. As a respected scholar of my acquaintance has said, this group did everything in a frivolous fashion, including enter the Boer War and the First World War."
Professor Carroll Quigley, The Anglo-American Establishment, p. 31. [1]

"The picture is terrifying because such power, whatever the goals at which it may be directed, is too much to be entrusted safely to any group. . . . No country that values its safety should allow what the Milner Group accomplished in Britain - that is, that a small number of men should be able to wield such power in administration and politics, should be given almost complete control over the publication of the documents relating to their actions, should be able to exercise such influence over the avenues of information that create public opinion, and should be able to monopolize so completely the writing and the teaching of the history of their own period."
Professor Carroll Quigley, Ibid, p.197 [2]

"June 28: Austro-Hungarian archduke Franz Ferdinand is assassinated and this serves as the catalyst for the beginning of World War I. On July 20 and 29,(1914 - ed) British secretary of state Sir Edward Grey ('close to the Milner Group politically, intellectually, and socially,' according to Prof. Quigley) will make certain statements to the German ambassador to England (Prince Karl Max Lichnowsky) that do not make it clear Britain will enter the conflict (World War I) if Germany goes to war."
Dr. Dennis Cuddy, The Globalists, p. 32. [3]

"1: H.R.H. Prince Henry was received by his Majesty King George V in London, who empowered him to transmit to me verbally, that England would remain neutral if war broke out on the Continent involving Germany and France, Austria and Russia. This message was telegraphed to me by my brother from London after his conversation with H.M. the King, and repeated verbally on the twenty-ninth of July."
James W. Gerard, My First Eighty-three Years in America, p. 218. [4]

Last month's Radio Liberty letter discussed the origin of World War I. Cecil Rhodes, Alfred Milner, and most of the members of their cabal, were either Masons, or involved in other occult organizations. In addition, a German Mason told the Kaiser the Grand Orient Freemasonic lodge orchestrated the events that led up to the Great War.

I believe both groups were involved, but they were aided by leaders in other nations who were involved in the occult. [5]

What part did the Milner Group (Rhodes' secret society) play? Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, was closely affiliated with the Milner Group; he got Russia and France to sign secret agreements that committed them to join England if there was a major war in Europe. Several years later, when World War I was imminent, Sir Edward Grey denied the existence of the secret agreements because the Cabinet and the British people didn't want to be involved in a European war. [6]

Professor Quigley researched that period. He admired the idealistic goal of the Milner Group (the Cecil Bloc), but they weren't concerned about the consequences of their actions. Professor Quigley wrote (in his book, The Anglo-American Establishment):

"The second generation of the Cecil Bloc was famous at the time. . . . This group, flitting about from one great country house to another or from one spectacular social event to another in the town houses of their elders, has been preserved for posterity in the autobiographical volumes of Margot Tennant Asquith. . . . "The frivolity of this group can be seen in Margot Tennant's statement that she obtained for Milner his appointment to the chairmanship of the Board of Inland Revenue in 1892 merely by writing to Balfour and asking for it after she had a too brief romantic interlude with Milner in Egypt. As a respected scholar of my acquaintance has said, this group did everything in a frivolous fashion including entering the Boer War and the First World War." [7]

Professor Quigley described the terrifying power of the Milner Group:

"The influence of Chatham House appears in its true perspective, not as the influence of an autonomous body but as merely one of many instruments in the arsenal of another power. When the influence which the Institute wields is combined with that controlled by the Milner Group in other fields - in education, in administration, in newspapers and periodicals - a really terrifying picture begins to emerge. This picture is called terrifying not because the power of the Milner Group was used for evil ends. It was not. On the contrary, it was generally used with the best intentions in the world - even if those intentions were so idealistic as to be almost academic. The picture is terrifying because such power, whatever the goals at which it may be directed, is too much to be entrusted safely to any group. . . . No country that values its safety should allow what the Milner Group accomplished in Britain - that is, that a small number of men should be able to wield such power in administration and politics, should be given almost complete control over the publication of the documents relating to their actions, should be able to exercise such influence over the avenues of information that create public opinion, and should be able to monopolize so completely the writing and the teaching of the history of their own period." [8]

Very little has changed since that time. Cecil Rhodes' secret society incited the Boer War and spawned the Milner Group (1902), the Milner Group spawned the Round Table Group (1909), the Round Table Group incited World War I and spawned the Royal Institute of International Affairs (1919) and the Council on Foreign Relations (1921), and the CFR and the RIIA spawned the Bilderberg Group in 1954, and the Trilateral Commission in 1973. At the present time the organizations (the CFR, the RIIA, the Bilderberg Group, and the TC), have "almost complete control over the publication of the documents relating to their actions," they "exercise . . . influence over the avenues of information that create public opinion," and they "monopolize . . . completely the writing and the teaching of the history of their own period." [9]

How did Sir Edward Grey precipitate the First World War? Kaiser Wilhelm wrote;

"Declassé also has a large share in the guilt for the World War, and Grey an even larger share, since he was the spiritual leader of the 'encirclement policy,' which he faithfully pushed forward and brought to completion." [10]

Dr. Dennis Cuddy researched that period, and wrote:

"June 28: Austro-Hungarian archduke Franz Ferdinand is assassinated, and this serves as the catalyst for the beginning of World War I. On July 20 and 29, (1914 - ed) British secretary of state Sir Edward Grey ('close to the Milner Group politically, intellectually, and socially,' according to Prof. Quigley) will make certain statements to the German ambassador to England (Prince Karl Max Lichnowsky) that do not make it clear Britain will enter the conflict (World War I) if Germany goes to war." [11]

Sir Edward Grey devised the "encirclement policy" that led to World War I in 1905. He implemented the policy when he became Foreign Secretary in 1906, and he deceived the Kaiser in 1914 because Grey didn't want the Kaiser to mediate the dispute between Serbia and Austria. [12]

One of the best sources of information on the events that took place at that time is Ambassador Gerard's book, My First Eighty-three Years in America. James Gerard was U.S. Ambassador to Germany in 1914, and, although he wasn't aware of the covert agenda of the Milner Group, he recognized the fact that Sir Edward Grey precipitated the Great War.

Ambassador Gerard wrote:

"In this question of the outbreak of war, it must be noted that Sir Edward Grey missed a great opportunity. If, in the beginning, he had told the German Ambassador that England would go to war against Germany . . . the world might have been spared a great war - a war which sowed the seeds of another and greater one twenty-five years after." [13]

Austria declared war on Serbia on July 28, Germany invaded Belgium on August 3, and Ambassador Gerard visited Kaiser Wilhelm on August 10.

Ambassador Gerard wrote:

"Early in August 1914 President Wilson sent me a message through the State Department stating that the United States stood ready at any time to mediate between the warring powers. He directed me to present this proposal to the Emperor in person. An audience with the Emperor (the Kaiser - ed) was arranged for me for the morning of August 10. The Emperor was seated at an iron table in the little garden of the palace in Berlin. . . . In formal language I made my offer. It was declined. Then the Emperor asked me to sit down and talk to him. . . .

The Emperor, on one of the few occasions that I saw him in a thoughtful mood, hesitated for a moment and then said slowly, 'No, the coming in of the English has changed the whole situation. They are an obstinate race. They will never stop fighting.'

After some further discussion the Emperor said he would send a personal message to President Wilson in answer to his offer. He then wrote in pencil, on some large telegraph blanks lying on the table, a personal message to the President. . . . Of the most historical interest is that part of the message referring to Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the violation of Belgian neutrality.

The message was as follows:

For the President of the United States personally: 10/VIII 14.

1. H.R.H. Prince Henry was received by his Majesty King George V in London, who empowered him to transmit to me verbally, that England would remain neutral if war broke out on the Continent involving Germany and France, Austria and Russia. This message was telegraphed to me by my brother from London after his conversation with H.M. the King, and repeated verbally on the twenty-ninth of July." [14]

The King's message convinced Kaiser Wilhelm there wouldn't be a major war, so the Kaiser didn't try to mediate the dispute between Serbia and Austria. Why did the King of England deceive his cousin? The Milner Group, and their supporters, controlled the British government; Lord Asquith was Prime Minister, Sir Edward Grey was Foreign Secretary, Lord Haldane was Secretary of War, and Lord Esher was the King's personal advisor. [15]

Who was Lord Esher? He was one of the four founding members of Cecil Rhodes' secret society, and he was the King's personal advisor. Lord Esher believed the coming war would regenerate the nations of the world. Is that true? I am indebted to Dr. Dennis Cuddy for calling my attention to the following entries in Lord Esher's diary.

On August 3, 1917, Lord Esher wrote in his Journal:

"No American is likely to be killed before November. This is unfortunate, as (President - ed) Wilson may require to be steadied before then and only the death of young Americans can ensure him stability."

Later that day Lord Esher wrote a letter to L.B.:

"No one can truly say that the sufferings of the world have been in vain; for they have regenerated all nations, and ours in particular. Can there be any doubt but that the war has made for progress and not for retrogression?" [16]

Twenty-one million people died during the Great War; fifty million people were injured. Did that regenerate the world?

Eight days later (August 11, 1917) Lord Esher wrote:

"Mr. Henry Morgenthau asked me to call on him. . . (He) was one of the principal supporters of President Wilson in the campaign for the Presidency, and he possesses the friendship and confidence of the President. . .

From the day of his election to the day when America declared war President Wilson and his friends have kept steadily in view the moral regeneration of their country; and it is with this objective before them that, in spite of the horrors of war, they are ready to sacrifice the lives of American citizens. The war appears to these idealists a Crusade. . . .

Mr. Morgenthau is aware, and he realises the importance upon the morale of the French army and the French people of cementing the Alliance by shedding American blood at the earliest possible moment.

If many lives have to be sacrificed, the influence upon the American people can only be beneficent." [17]

Ambassador Gerard recorded the Kaiser's message to President Wilson. Kaiser Wilhelm II wrote:

"2. My Ambassador in London transmitted a message from Sir E. Grey to Berlin saying that only in case France was likely to be crushed England would interfere." [18]

The King's message and Sir Edward Grey's message convinced the Kaiser there was no danger of a major war, so he didn't try to mediate the dispute. Serbia mobilized during the last week of July, Austria declared war on Serbia on July 28, and I suspect the Masonic movement held key positions in both governments.

Ambassador Gerard recorded Kaiser Wilhelm's message to President Wilson;

"3. On the thirtieth my Ambassador in London reported that Sir Edward Grey in course of a 'private' conversation told him that if the conflict remained localized between Russia - not Serbia - and Austria, England would not move, but if we 'mixed' in the fray she would take quick decisions and grave measures; i.e., if I left my ally Austria in the lurch to fight alone England would not touch me." [19]

At that point, the Kaiser being confused by the conflicting messages, wrote:

"4. This communication being directly counter to the King's message to me, I telegraphed to H.M. (the King) on the twenty-ninth or thirtieth, thanking him for (his-ed) kind messages through my brother and begging him to use all his power to keep France and Russia - his Allies - from making any war-like preparations calculated to disturb my work of mediation, stating that I was in constant communication with H.M. the Czar. In the evening the King kindly answered that he had ordered his Government to use every possible influence with his Allies to refrain from taking any provocative military measures. At the same time H.M. asked me if I would transmit to Vienna the British proposal that Austria was to make Belgrade and a few other Serbian towns a strip of country as a 'main-mise' to make sure that the Serbian promises on paper should be fulfilled in reality. This proposal was in the same moment telegraphed to me from Vienna for London, quite in conjunction with the British proposal; besides, I had telegraphed to H.M. the Czar (the Kaiser's cousin-ed) the same as an idea of mine, before I received the two communications from Vienna and London, as both were of the same opinion.

5. I immediately transmitted the telegrams vice versa to Vienna and London. I felt that I was able to tide the question over and was happy at the peaceful outlook." [20]

The Kaiser tried to mediate the crisis. Why did he fail? The Masons wanted to destroy the European monarchies. The Milner Group wanted to unite the world, and the occult movement wanted to shed the blood of millions of people.

"6. While I was preparing a note to H.M. the Czar the next morning, to inform him that Vienna, London and Berlin were agreed about the treatment of affairs, I received the telephones from H.E. the Chancellor that in the night before the Czar had given the order to mobilize the whole of the Russian Army, which was, of course, also meant against Germany; whereas up till then the southern armies had been mobilized against Austria." [21]

Why did the Czar mobilize his army, and precipitate World War I?

Professor Quigley described the events that led to the war:

"Serbia, confident of Russian support, answered (Austria - ed) in a reply which was partly favorable, partly evasive, and in one particular at least (use of Austrian judges on Serbian tribunals) negative. Serbia mobilized before making her reply; Austria mobilized against her as soon as it (Serbia's response-ed) was received, and on, July 28th, declared war. The Russian czar, under severe pressure from his generals, issued, retracted, modified, and reissued an order for general mobilization. Since the German military timetable for a two-front war provided that France must be defeated before Russian mobilization was completed, France and Germany both ordered mobilization on August 1st, and Germany declared war on Russia. As the German armies began to pour westward, Germany declared war on France (August 3rd) and Belgium (August 4th). Britain could not allow France to be defeated, and in addition was morally entangled by the military conversations of 1906-1914 and by the naval agreement of 1912. Moreover, the German challenge on the high seas, in commercial activities throughout the world, and in colonial activities in Africa could not go unanswered. On August 4th Britain declared war on Germany, emphasizing the iniquity of her attack on Belgium, although in the Cabinet meeting of July 29th it had been agreed that such an attack would not legally obligate Britain to go to war. Although this issue was spread among the people, and endless discussions ensued about Britain's obligation to defend Belgian neutrality under the Treaty of 1839, those who made the decision saw clearly that the real reason for war was that Britain could not allow Germany to defeat France." [22]

Most historians present that explanation today because they don't realize the Masons and the Milner Group incited the war. Kaiser Wilhelm offered to halt the invasion of France, but Sir Edward Grey ignored the offer.

"7. In a telegram from London my Ambassador informed me he understood the British government would guarantee neutrality of France and wished to know whether Germany would refrain from attack. I telegraphed to H.M. the King personally that mobilization being already carried out could not be stopped, but if H.M could guarantee with his armed forces the neutrality of France I would refrain from attacking her, leave her alone and employ my troops elsewhere. H.M answered that he thought my offer was based on a misunderstanding; and, as far as I can make out, Sir E. Grey never took my offer into serious consideration. He never answered it. Instead, he declared England had to defend Belgian neutrality, which had to be violated by Germany on strategical grounds, news having been received that France was already preparing to enter Belgium, and the King of Belgians having refused my petition for a free passage under guarantee of his country's freedom. I am most grateful for the President's message." William, H.R. [23]

Why did the King of England and Sir Edward Grey send the Kaiser conflicting messages? Why didn't Sir Edward Grey accept the Kaiser's offer to halt the invasion of France? Why didn't the King of Belgium give the German army permission to pass through his country? There is a great deal more to this story, but it will have to wait until next month.

President Obama claims the recession is over, but that isn't true. The Bush administration provided $750 billion for TARP in 2008, the Obama administration appropriated $862 billion to stimulate the economy in 2009, the Federal Reserve paid the major banks $1.7 trillion for defective CDOs in 2010, and, according to Bloomberg (in November 2008), the Federal government has, or will, spend over $8.5 trillion to stimulate the economy. What have they accomplished? The U2 unemployment rate is 9.6 %, the U6 unemployment rate is over 21% if you remove the "birth-death statistics", almost a million people will lose their homes this year, and the GDP fell from 3.5% in the first quarter of 2010 to 1.6% in the second quarter of 2010. Why didn't the massive infusion of funds resuscitate the U.S. economy? I believe the BOD is trying to destroy our nation, and shift industrial production to Asia where the GDP is increasing 8-10% a year.

What can you do? You can put on the whole armour of God, and stand against the wiles of the wicked people who control our nation because:

Did we in our own strength confide, Our striving would be losing;
Were not the right Man on our side, The Man of God's own choosing:
Dost ask who that may be? Christ Jesus, it is He;
Lord Sabaoth, His name, From age to age the same,
And He must win the battle. [24]

Barbara and I appreciate your loyal support and your faithful prayers.

THE SECRET CABAL VI

"Let us never tolerate outrageous conspiracy theories concerning the attacks of September the 11th; malicious lies that attempt to shift the blame away from the terrorists, themselves, away from the guilty." President George W. Bush, Address to the U.N., November 10, 2001 [1]

"There is always a temptation to think that behind important events there is some great secret, and that a chance remark or indiscretion has revealed it. It is better to resist this temptation: to indulge it is more likely to lead us off than on to the track of true conclusion." Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, "Twenty-Five Years," 1892-1916: p. 276-277. [2]

"Grigory Yefimovich Rasputin . . . gained fame locally as a faith healer. Appearing at the imperial court in the Russian capital St. Petersburg about 1907, Rasputin soon acquired a reputation as a mystic and healer, and became a favorite of Empress Alexandra Fyodorovna and through her influenced Nicholas II." occultpedia.com [3]

"Certainly Colonel E. Mandell House occupied a unique position in the annals of American diplomacy. He, who had never been appointed to any position and who had never been passed upon by the Senate, was 'fully instructed and commissioned' to act in the most grave situation. I have never ceased to wonder how he had managed to attain such power and influence." James W Gerard, "My First Eighty-three Years in America," p. 230. [4]

Why is America changing? Why is the U.S. fighting in Afghanistan today? Why did Building # 7 collapse at 5:20 p.m. on September 11, 2001? Why is the Chinese economy expanding? Why is the U.S. economy contracting? Why does the U.S. give tax incentives to U.S. corporations that transfer their production overseas? Who controls the United States? [5]

When President George W. Bush addressed the United Nations on November 10, 2001, several weeks after the 9/11 attack, he stated:

"Let us never tolerate outrageous conspiracy theories concerning the attacks of September the 11th, malicious lies that attempt to shift the blame away from the terrorists, themselves, away from the guilty." [6]

That is a misleading statement because the Bush administration proposed a "conspiracy theory." They claim al Qaeda, Osama bin Laden, and nineteen terrorists hijacked four commercial airliners, and crashed them into the Twin Towers and the Pentagon. Is that true? There are serious problems with the Bush administration's "conspiracy theory."

Michael Ruppert researched the 9/11 terrorist attack, and presented his findings in a book titled, Crossing the Rubicon. The U.S. military held fifteen exercises that morning. Five of them simulated terrorists hijacking airliners, and crashing them into buildings. Shortly after Michael's book was published, someone ransacked his office, smashed his computers, and destroyed his records. He discovered one of his best friends (and several employees) worked for the FBI. Then someone poisoned him. Michael Ruppert moved to Canada until 2010. He returned to the U.S. that year, and established the Collapse Network.

If al Qaeda and Osama bin Laden carried out the 9/11 attack, why did someone trash Michael Ruppert's office, and poison him? [7]

Jimmy Walter was a successful businessman until he watched the Twin Towers fall, and realized the collapse was an engineered controlled demolition. During the months that followed Jimmy Walter spent $8 million on TV and newspaper ads in an effort to convince the public the hijacked planes didn't destroy the WTC buildings. What happened? Someone, or some group, harassed Jimmy Walters. They threatened to kill him if he didn't stop running his ads.

Jimmy Walter left the United States in 2006 because he feared for his life. He is living in Europe today. If al Qaeda, Osama bin Laden, and a band of terrorists carried out the 9/11 attack, who harassed Jimmy Walters and threatened to kill him? [8]

Sergeant Lauro Chavez claims he was stationed at USCENTCOM headquarters on the morning of the 9/11 attack. I interviewed Lauro in 2006, and he told me there was a "stand-down order" that morning; he also said there were several military exercises that simulated hijacked airliners crashing into buildings. Sergeant Chavez was viciously attacked on the Internet after I interviewed him. He disappeared, and I haven't been able to contact Lauro Chavez since that time. [9]

You can obtain cassette copies of my interviews with Jimmy Walter and Lauro Chavez by calling 800-544-8927.

Who trashed Michael Ruppert's office? Who poisoned him?

Who harassed Jimmy Walter, and threatened to kill him?

What happened to Sergeant Lauro Chavez?

I believe there is an organized effort to conceal the truth about the 9/11 attack.

A similar situation existed after the First World War. The public wanted to know the cause of the terrible carnage. Some people believed J.P. Morgan (and his friends) incited the conflict because they profited from the war. Other people believed the weapon manufacturers, "The Merchants of Death," precipitated the war. Others thought the major corporations were responsible. There is an element of truth in all of the theories, but they are wrong. J.P. Morgan, the banks, the weapons manufacturers, and the corporations made a great deal of money, but that wasn't the primary cause of the Great War.

You cannot understand the origin of World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, the First Gulf War, the Afghan War and the Iraq War, unless you recognize the influence of the occult movement that directs the course of world events. What is their goal? They want a world government, a world religion, and a world leader.

When Sir Edward Grey wrote his memoirs, Twenty-Five Years: 1892-1916, he realized the public wanted to know the true cause of World War I, so he stated:

"There is always a temptation to think that behind important events there is some great secret, and that a chance remark or indiscretion has revealed it. It is better to resist this temptation: to indulge it is more likely to lead us off than on the track of true conclusion."
[10]

Sir Edward Grey didn't want the public to learn the true cause of the Great War, and President Bush doesn't want the public to learn the truth about the 9/11 attack. As Yogi Berra said: "It's like déjà vu all over again."

Last month's Radio Liberty letter discussed the organizations that were responsible for the First World War: i.e. the European Grand Orient (Masonic) Lodge and the Milner Group (Cecil Rhodes' secret society). But other people were involved.

Nicholas II mobilized the Russian army on July 31, 1914. Professor Quigley described that event:

"The Russian czar, under severe pressure from his generals, issued, retracted, modified, and reissued an order for general mobilization. Since the German military timetable for a two-front war provided that France must be defeated before Russian mobilization was completed, France and Germany both ordered mobilization on August 1st, and Germany declared war on Russia. As the German armies began to pour westward, Germany declared war on France (August 3rd), and Belgium (August 4th)." [11]

Why did Nicholas II mobilize the Russian army, and precipitate the First World War?

Serge Sazonov was the Russian Foreign Minister, and his book. Fateful Years: 1909-1916 describes his August 1, 1914, meeting with Count Pourtales, the German ambassador. Count Pourtales pleaded with Sazonov to stop the mobilization because it would lead to war. Serge Sazonov wrote:

"Count Pourtales was much agitated. He repeated his question, dwelling upon the serious consequences which our refusal to comply with the German request would involve. I gave the same answer. Pulling out of his pocket a folded sheet of paper, the Ambassador repeated his question for the third time in a voice that trembled. I said I could give no other answer. Deeply moved, the Ambassador said to me, speaking with difficulty:

'In that case my Government charges me to give you the following note.'

And with a shaking hand Pourtales handed me the Declaration of War. . . .

After handing the note to me, the Ambassador, who had evidently found it a great strain to carry out his orders, lost all self control and leaning against the window burst into tears. . .

In spite of my own emotion, which I managed to overcome, I felt sincerely sorry for him. We embraced each other and with tottering steps he walked out of the room." [12]

There was good reason to weep. The First World War killed 21 million people, injured 50 million, destroyed the Russian Empire, the Turkish Empire, the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the German Empire, and foreshadowed the destruction of the British Empire.

Why did Nicholas II mobilize the Russian army?

Last month's Radio Liberty letter noted the little-known fact that Lord Esher was the power behind the English throne in 1914. He was also a founding member of Cecil Rhodes' secret society, and they wanted to establish a world government. [13] A similar situation existed in Russia. A "mad monk" named Rasputin controlled the Russian throne, and directed the fatal course of that nation. Wikipedia states:

"Grigori Yefimovich Rasputin . . . was a Russian mystic who is perceived as having influenced the latter days of the Russian Emperor Nicholas II, his wife Alexandra, and their only son, Alexei. Rasputin had often been called the "Mad Monk," while others considered him a 'strannik' (or religious pilgrim) . . . believing him to be a psychic and faith healer.

It has been argued that Rasputin helped to discredit the tsarist government, leading to the fall of the Romanov dynasty, in 1917. Contemporary opinions saw Rasputin variously as a saintly mystic, visionary, healer and prophet or, on the contrary, as a debauched religious charlatan. . . ." [14]

www.occultopedia.com claims Rasputin was:

"A Russian mystic and prophet whose malign influence over the Russian imperial family contributed directly to the collapse of the Romanov dynasty shortly after his own death. . . .

Appearing at the imperial court in the Russian capital St. Petersburg about 1907, Rasputin soon acquired a reputation as a mystic and healer, and became a favorite of Empress Alexandra Fyodorovna and through her influenced Nicholas II. Rasputin's hold over

Alexandra stemmed from his hypnotic power to alleviate the suffering of the hemophiliac crown prince, Aleksei." [15]

When the war began, the German army attacked and the Russian army retreated, so Rasputin told the Czar he should go to the front and direct military operations. When the Czar departed, he left Alexandra in charge of the Russian government, and she asked Rasputin for advice. At that point the Russian people lost confidence in the Romanov dynasty because Rasputin was a drunkard, a womanizer, and many people believed he was a demonic charlatan.

Several members of the Russian nobility recognized what was happening, and decided to kill Rasputin.

www.occultopedia.com describes what happened:

"At the end of December 1916 Rasputin was invited to tea at the house of one of the noble conspirators and was fed cake and wine laced with cyanide. Unaffected by the poison, he was then shot several times and beaten with an iron bar. Still alive, he was dragged to the frozen River Neva, tied-up, and thrown through a hole in the ice. Within two years Tsar Nicholas and his family were dead, executed by the Bolsheviks." [16]

That is an amazing story. Rasputin was poisoned, shot, and beaten, but he didn't die. Why didn't Rasputin die? I believe Rasputin had supernatural power, and he used that power to control the Romanov dynasty. Could that explain why Nicholas II mobilized the Russian army, and precipitated World War I?

Lord Esher controlled the King of England, and Rasputin controlled Nicholas and Alexandra, but why did France and the United States enter the First World War?

Very few people understand the events that led up to the First World War because the Brotherhood of Darkness purchased the major publishing outlets, and concealed the truth. If you want to determine what happened, you must read the books that were written at that time.

France had a secret agreement with Russia and Great Britain, but the French people didn't want to enter the First World War, and when the war began, they wanted to end the conflict. Why did France continue fighting?

Once again I am indebted to Dr. Dennis Cuddy for the following quotation. It comes from John Kenneth Turner's book, Shall It Be Again?. The information has been suppressed because the BOD doesn't want the American people to learn the truth. John Kenneth Turner wrote:;

"In February, 1917, Representative Calloway, on the floor of Congress, charged the Morgan interests with having, in March, 1915, organized and financed a huge propaganda machine embracing twelve influential publishers and 179 selected newspapers, for the purpose of manufacturing sentiment favorable to American participation in the war. These charges were renewed in May, 1921, by Representative Michelson of Illinois. The latter called attention to the fact that, in his history of the war, Gabriel Hanotaux tells of a conference with the late Robert Bacon, then a member of the Morgan firm, in 1914, in which he and Bacon drew up plans and specifications for a great scare campaign in this country. Hanotaux also suggests that France was ready to make peace in 1914, but was dissuaded by Bacon and other American politicians, who gave assurances that they could ultimately bring America into the war on the side of France." [17]

Why is that information important? It reveals France wanted to end the war in 1914, but J.P. Morgan's agent, Robert Bacon, told the French government the U.S. would enter the war, and defeat the Central Powers.

"These charges are worth recording, but they are important only when taken in connection with other evidence. As a means of establishing the wish of our great financial interests for war, at least for some time before it was declared, they do not need to be proven. For, aside from the circumstantial evidence here given, any one who has read the Pujo Committee report on the Money Trust, showing the concentration of credit in the hands of three great banks, and the control of small banks by the big ones - and any one who appreciates the dependence of the more powerful organs of the press upon the dominant business interests of the communities which they serve, and especially upon the banks - will understand that the propaganda storm of the months preceding our entrance into the war would have been impossible without the approval and instigation of Wall Street. As Wall Street wanted war before it came, so, after it came, Wall Street promoted the war." [18]

Robert Bacon worked for J.P. Morgan, and J.P. Morgan wanted to bring the United States into the war. J.P. Morgan was one of the wealthiest men in the world at that time. He didn't need additional money, so why did J.P. Morgan promote the deadly conflict?

Corinne McLaughlin has been involved in the occult movement for many years. Her book, Spiritual Politics, is an excellent source of information. Corinne McLaughlin wrote:

"Disney companies used astrology to open their Euro Disney theme park - just as they have done with their parks in California and Florida. Financier J.P. Morgan gave his astrologer credit for his billionaire status. . . ." [19]

Corinne McLaughlin claims J.P. Morgan was involved in astrology, and astrology is founded in the occult. Is there other information that link J.P. Morgan to the occult? Yes! He was closely affiliated with the Milner Group, and most of the founding members of that organization were involved in the occult. The Milner Group established the Round Table Group, and the Round Table Group established the Royal Institute for International Affairs in the Commonwealth nations in 1919 and the Council on Foreign Relations in the United States in 1921. Professor Quigley described the structure of the conspiratorial organization.

"The leaders of this group were: Milner, . . . followed by Curtis, Robert H. (Lord) Brand . . . and . . . Adam D. Marris, . . . managing director of Lazard Brothers bank Money for the widely ramified activities of this organization came originally from the associates and followers of Cecil Rhodes, chiefly from the Rhodes Trust. . . . Since 1925 there have been substantial contributions from wealthy individuals and from foundations and firms associated with the international banking fraternity, especially the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust, and other organizations associated with J.P. Morgan, the Rockefeller and Whitney families, and the associates of Lazard Brothers and of Morgan, Grenfell, and Company.

The chief backbone of this organization grew up along the already existing financial co-operation running from the Morgan Bank in New York to a group of international financiers in London led by Lazard Brothers. Milner himself in 1901 had refused a fabulous offer, worth up to $100,000 a year, ($10 million a year today - ed) to become one of the three partners of the Morgan Bank in London. . . .

At the end of the war of 1914, it became clear that the organization of this system had to be greatly extended. Once again the task was entrusted to Lionel Curtis who established in England, and each dominion, a front organization to the existing local Round Table Group. This front organization, called the Royal Institute of International Affairs, had as its nucleus in each area the existing submerged Round Table Group. In New York it was known as the Council on Foreign Relations, and was a front for J.P. Morgan and Company in association with the very small American Round Table Group." [20]

J.P. Morgan financed the Milner Group's effort to establish a world government. That has been the goal of the secret societies and the occult movement for 4200 years, and that is their goal today. Corinne McLaughlin claims J.P. Morgan attributed his wealth to his Astrologer, and that is probably true because most of the men who have accumulated great wealth have accessed the spiritual dimension. If you doubt that is true, I suggest you watch Pastor Joe Schimmel's DVD, "They Sold Their Souls for Rock and Roll." It documents the fact that most of the major entertainers of the past half-century were involved in the occult.

J.P. Morgan, and his associates, purchased the editorial policy of 25 major newspapers, and launched a program to convince the American people the U.S. should enter the First World War, but that wasn't the primary reason the U.S. entered the conflict. [21]

Colonel Edward Mandell House controlled U.S. foreign policy, and manipulated the U.S. into the First World War. Who was Colonel House? Why did he control U.S. foreign policy? Ambassador James Gerard was Ambassador to Germany at that time, and was concerned about the power that Colonel House wielded. Ambassador Gerard wrote in his book, My First Eight-three Years in America:

"Certainly Colonel E. Mandell House occupied a unique position in the annals of American diplomacy. He, who had never been appointed to any position and who had never been passed upon by the Senate, was 'fully instructed and commissioned' to act in the most grave situation. I have never ceased to wonder how he had managed to attain such power and influence." [22]

I began this letter with a series of questions. I will answer them next month, and tell you why Colonel House was one of the most powerful men in the world.

The U.S. economy is contracting, the dollar is falling, 900,000 homes were repossessed in 2009, 528,000 homes were taken over by lenders during the first six months of 2010, 1.7 million homeowners received foreclosure-related warnings between January and June, 2010, and 7.3 million homes are in some stage of delinquency today. [23] Why doesn't the government intervene, and protect homeowners? The Brotherhood of Darkness controls the U.S. government, and they want to impoverish the American people. What can you do? You can expose the sinister force that controls our nation because:

Back of all that foes have plotted, back of all that Saints have planned,
Back of schemes of men or demons, Moves a higher, hidden hand. . . .
Mysteries which hurt and baffle, Past our power to understand
In the end are turned to blessing By the Sovereign Hidden Hand. [24]

SECRET CABAL VII

Colonel E. Mandell House occupied a unique position in the annals of American diplomacy.

He, who had never been appointed to any position and who had never been passed upon by the Senate, was 'fully instructed and commissioned' to act in the most grave situation. I have never ceased to wonder how he had managed to attain such power and influence."

Ambassador James W. Gerard, "My First Eighty-three Years in America," p. 230 [1]

"Colonel Edward Mandell House, a close aide of President Wilson's - who was called a 'man of mystery' - was guided inwardly to bring the idea of a League of Nations to the world. Colonel House was a quiet, self-effacing adviser with tremendous dedication, practical intelligence, and skill. 'By his idealism he touched those belonging to the Inner Government of the world, and by his mastery of practical politics he was able to influence those who governed the outer,' noted metaphysician Theodore Heline. Colonel House was also called by some 'the Hidden Master of the New Deal.'"

Corinne McLaughlin and Gordon Davidson, "Spiritual Politics," p. 248 [2]

"In Changing Esoteric Values by Foster Bailey, on page 58, Colonel House is referred to as a 'disciple,' and President Wilson is referred to as 'a sixth ray disciple.'"

Dr. Dennis Cuddy, "The Road to Socialism and the New World Order," p. 32 [3]

My September 2010, Radio Liberty letter began with seven questions:

(1) "Why is America changing? (2) Why is the U.S. fighting in Afghanistan today? (3) Why did Building 7 collapse at 5:20 p.m. on September 11, 2001? (4) Why is the Chinese economy expanding? (5) Why is the U.S. economy contracting? (6) Why does the U.S. give tax incentives to U.S. corporations that transfer their production overseas? (7) Who controls the United States?"

I will answer those questions, and discuss Colonel Edward Mandell House, 'the man of mystery' who chartered the current course of our nation.

Why is America changing?

A small group of powerful men (the Brotherhood of Darkness) control the "political government of the United States." They work under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), the Royal Institute of International Affairs (RIIA), the Club of Rome (CR), the Bilderbergs (BB), and the Trilateral Commission (TC) that has chapters in North America, Europe, and Asia. The North American Chapter of the TC is the pinnacle of power at the present time, but that is changing. Members control the Federal Reserve System (the U.S. Central Bank), the Central Bank of Canada, the Central Bank of Israel, the major U.S. banks, the major media outlets, the major corporations, both political parties, and most of the wealth of the world. [4] Why did David Rockefeller organize the Trilateral Commission? Senator Barry Goldwater addressed that question in his 1979 book, "With No Apologies."

Senator Goldwater's words are reproduced in bold type. My response is printed in italics.

"In 1962 then Governor Nelson Rockefeller delivered a series of lectures at Harvard University on the future of federalism. In his presentation the governor dwelt at length on the inter- dependence of nations in the modern world, concluding with this statement: 'And so the nation-state, standing alone, threatens in many ways to seem as anachronistic as the Greek city-state eventually became in ancient times.'" [5]

Nelson Rockefeller wanted to establish a world government. That has been the quest of the secret societies that have plagued mankind since the dawn of civilization, and that is the quest of the Brotherhood of Darkness today. The Rockefeller family, the Rothschilds, the Black Nobility, and many wealthy families, want to destroy Christianity, and establish a world government. They want a New World Order.

"Everything the governor said was true. We are dependent on other nations for raw materials and for markets. . . . Where I differ from the governor is in the suggestion implicit through- out the lectures that to achieve this new federalism, the United States must submerge its national identity and surrender substantial matters of sovereignty to a new political order.

The implications in Governor Rockefeller's presentation have become concrete proposals advanced by David Rockefeller's newest international cabal, the Trilateral Commission. Whereas the Council on Foreign Relations is distinctly national in membership, the Trilateral Commission is international. . . . It is intended to be the vehicle for multinational consoli- dation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the United States." [6]

The Trilateral Commission controls the "political government of the United States" today. Between 1977 and 2008:

- Every President and/or Vice-president of the United States was a member of the Trilateral Commission (TC).*
- Six of the eight presidents of the World Bank were members.*

- Eight of the ten U.S. World Trade Representatives were members.
- Seven of the twelve Secretaries of State were members.
- Nine of the twelve Secretaries of Defense were members.
- Prior to Ben Bernanke, three of the four Chairmen of the FED were members.
- The North American Chapter of the Trilateral Commission (the BOD) controls "the political government of the United States" today. [7]

Why is the U.S. fighting in Afghanistan Today?

The Brotherhood of Darkness (BOD) works through a number of "front organizations." They established the "Project for a New American Century" (PNAC) in 1997 because they want to control the Middle East. Three years later (in 2000) PNAC published a monograph titled "Rebuilding America's Defenses." The following statement appears on page 14:

"Since the collapse of the Soviet empire, this perimeter (the U.S. defense-perimeter -ed) has expanded slowly but inexorably. . . . In the Persian Gulf region, the presence of American forces, along with British and French units, has become a semipermanent fact of life. . . . Indeed, the United States has for decades sought to play a more permanent role in Gulf regional security. While the unresolved conflict with Iraq provides the immediate justification, the need for a substantial American force presence in the Gulf transcends the issue of the regime of Saddam Hussein. . . ." [8]

The BOD wanted to station U.S. troops in the Middle East so they could control the Muslim nations, but they needed an excuse to carry out that program. The PNAC document continued (page 50) :

"A transformation strategy that solely pursued capabilities for projecting force from the United States . . . and sacrificed forward basing and presence, would be at odds with larger American policy goals and would trouble American allies.

Further, the process of transformation, even if it brings revolutionary change, is likely to be a long one, absent some catastrophic and catalyzing event - like a new Pearl Harbor." [9]

The U.S. (the BOD) controlled most of the world at that time. They had 720 foreign military bases, and troops stationed in 130 nations, but the Muslim nation didn't want to relinquish their sovereignty. What did the BOD do? They engineered the false flag attack that took place on September 11, 2001, and used that incident to justify the U.S. attack on Afghanistan. [10]

Why did Building 7 collapse at 5:20 p.m. on September 11, 2001?

Building 7 was destroyed by controlled demolition. You can watch Building 7 collapse at my Web site -www.radioliberty.com - at "Videos Around the Web" - at the bottom of the page. What will you see? You will see the center of the roof collapse when the technicians destroy the beams that support the center of the building so the walls fall inward. Then the base of Building 7 disintegrates, and the structure falls symmetrically, straight down, at the speed of gravity. 1,373 architects and engineers have signed a petition that calls for an independent investigation of the destruction of Building 7. [11]

Why is the Chinese economy expanding?

The BOD is implementing Principle 10a of the Earth Charter; it calls to:

"Promote the equitable distribution of wealth within nations and among nations."

The BOD is transferring U.S. manufacturing to China, and other nations, because the BOD wants to raise the standard of living in other nations, and lower the standard of living in the United States. They:

- (1) Removed U.S. tariffs. American manufacturers can't compete with foreign companies that employ "slave labor."
- (2) Encouraged the World Bank, the Asian Development Fund, the IMF, American banks, and European banks to fund construction of factories in other nations.
- (3) Provided tax incentives to companies that produce products in China.
- (4) Let foreign nations manipulate the value of their currency.
- (5) Let foreign nations discriminate against American products. [12]

Why is the U.S. economy contracting?

- (1) The BOD rewards companies that shift their headquarters and manufacturing overseas; i.e., no U.S. corporate tax. [13]
- (2) BOD corporations outsource their jobs; i.e., answering services in India.
- (3) If a CEO shifts production overseas, they receive a higher salary. [14]
- (4) BOD banks limited lending, and contracted the money supply (M3). [15]

Why does the U.S. give tax incentives to U.S. corporations that transfer their production overseas?

The U.S. gives tax incentives to corporations that shift their production overseas, and employ H-1B workers, because the BOD wants to lower the standard of living in the United States. [16] David Rockefeller justified the program when he wrote:

"Populists and isolationists ignore the tangible benefits that have resulted from our active international role during the past half-century . . . there have been fundamental improvements in societies around the world . . . as a result of global trade, improved communications and the heightened interaction of people from different cultures. Populists rarely mention these positive consequences, nor can they cogently explain how they would have sustained American economic growth and the expansion of our political power without them." [17]

David Rockefeller is correct. There have been "fundamental improvements in societies around the world," but the BOD program destroyed the industrial base of our nation.

Who controls the United States?

The BOD controls the United States, and they are destroying the moral and financial structure of our nation.

Who was Colonel House, and why is he important today?

Colonel Edward Mandell House never held public office, but he was the most important political figure of the twentieth century. Colonel House controlled the Wilson administration, prolonged World War I, brought the U.S. into the Great War, helped write the Treaty of Versailles that led to World War II, aided the Bolsheviks, helped J.P. Morgan organize the Council on Foreign Relations, and was a close personal friend of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. [18]

How did Colonel House control President Wilson and his administration? Arthur Howden Smith knew Colonel House, and wrote:

"Colonel House would come into an office and say a few words quietly, and after he had gone you would suddenly become seized by a good idea. You would suggest that idea to your friends or superiors and be congratulated for it; it would work first rate, beyond your wildest dreams. You might forget about it. But some time, as sure as shooting, in cogitating profoundly over it, you would come to an abrupt realization that that idea had been oozed into your brain by Colonel House in the course of conversation." [19]

How did Colonel House "ooze" his ideas into other men's minds? Ambassador Gerard was the American Ambassador to Germany from 1913-1917. Ambassador Gerard knew Colonel House, but didn't understand the source of his mysterious ability.

Ambassador Gerard described a tragic event that took place at that time:

"In the early months of 1915 it became apparent that the German blitzkrieg had lost its initial force. The push for Paris and the German sweep to a quick victory had failed. . . . The Germans . . . knew that the quickest way to the ear of Washington was through me, and in due course it was intimated to me that Germany was ready to make peace. . . . I felt justified, on February 11, 1915, (seven months after the war began - ed) in sending President Wilson the following cable in code.

It is my conviction that if a reasonable peace proposition were offered Germany very many men of influence would be inclined to use their efforts to induce Germany to accept the proposition. If peace does not come immediately a new and protracted phase of the war will commence. It will be fatal to hesitate or wait a moment; success is dependent on immediate action. It is my belief that if you seize the present opportunity you will be the instrument of bringing about the greatest peace which has ever been signed, but it will be fatal to hesitate or wait a moment." [20]

Germany wanted to end the war, but Colonel House had a different agenda.

"The response to this cable was an instruction from President Wilson to refer everything to Colonel House, who, the communication specified, had been 'fully instructed and commissioned to act in all these matters'. . . .

All authority, therefore, had been vested in Colonel House, and as I was directed to report to Colonel House direct, the President ceased to be even a conduit of communications. . . .

Certainly Colonel E. Mandell House occupied a unique position in the annals of American diplomacy. He, who had never been appointed to any position and who had never be passed upon by the Senate, was 'fully instructed and commissioned' to act in the most grave situation. I have never ceased to wonder how he managed to attain such power and influence." [21]

How did Colonel House attain his "power and influence"? The August Radio Liberty letter described the occult background of the organizations that were primarily responsible for World War I; i.e., the Grand Orient Masonic Lodge, and Cecil Rhodes' secret society. Sir Edward Grey precipitated the conflict. If you read Sir Edward's autobiography, you will discover he was closely affiliated with the Milner Group that was involved in the occult, and Colonel Edward Mandell House was a close friend.

The September Radio Liberty letter discussed Rasputin, the Russian mystic who controlled the Romanov family, and the part J.P. Morgan played in inciting the war. J.P. Morgan was involved in astrology.

How did Colonel House control President Wilson and his administration? Corinne McLaughlin and her husband, Gordon Davidson, answered that question in their book, "Spiritual Politics." They wrote:

"Colonel Edward Mandell House, a close aide of President Wilson - who was called a 'man of mystery' -was guided inwardly to bring the idea of a League of Nations to the world. Colonel House was a quiet, self-effacing adviser with tremendous dedication, practical intelligence, and skill. 'By his idealism he touched those belonging to the Inner Government of the world, and by his mastery of practical politics he was able to influence those who governed the outer,' noted metaphysician Theodore Heline. Colonel House was also called by some, 'the Hidden Master of the New Deal.'" [22]

I believe Colonel House was involved in occult practices, and I believe he used occult power to touch "those belonging to the Inner Government of the world." Dr. Dennis Cuddy researched the events that took place during that era, and wrote:

"In Changing Esoteric Values by Foster Bailey, on page 58, Colonel House is referred to as a 'disciple,' and President Wilson is referred to as a 'sixth ray disciple.' Foster's wife, Alice Bailey (the leading occultist of the day), referred to FDR as 'that great first ray disciple' in The Externalisation of the Hierarchy, in which she wrote of those who 'will develop the new world religion . . . [and] the new civilization. . . . They can, however, be delayed by the reactionary types of people, by the ultra-conservative and closed minds. . . . These must all be brought under the power of death.'" [23]

Why did Colonel House prolong World War I, and kill millions of innocent people? Colonel House answered that question in an article published in Foreign Affairs magazine in June 1923. Foreign Affairs is the official journal of the Council on Foreign Relations:

"If war had not come in 1914 in fierce and exaggerated form, the idea of an association of nations would probably have remained dormant, for great reforms seldom materialize except during great upheavals. . . . If law and order are good within states (nations), there can be no reason why they should not be good between states (nations)." [24]

Colonel House prolonged World War I because he wanted world government. I believe Colonel House, President Wilson, and President Roosevelt were knowingly, or unknowingly, involved in the occult movement, and I believe the men who lead the BOD are knowingly or unknowingly involved in the occult movement today.

The world is changing. The U.S. economy is contracting. U2 unemployment is 9.6%, U6 unemployment is over 16%, and if you remove "the birth-death ratio," U6 unemployment is over 22%. One-and-a-half million families have lost their homes since January 2009, four million homes are in some stage of foreclosure, the price of food and household necessities is increasing, and the FED is funding the major (BOD) banks that created the problem.

Most people realize something is seriously wrong, but they don't understand the spiritual component of the battle. The Republican sweep of the House of Representatives reflects the growing awareness of the American people. We must stay the course, and expose the "dark force" that controls our nation because:

Then to side with truth is noble, When we share her wretched crust,
Ere her cause bring fame and profit. And 'tis prosperous to be just,
Then it is the brave man chooses, While the coward stands aside,
Till the multitude make virtue, Of the faith they have denied. . . .

Though the cause of evil prosper, Yet 'tis truth alone is strong;
Though her portion be the scaffold, And upon the throne be wrong.
Yet that scaffold sways the future, And, behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow, Keeping watch above his own. [25]

Stanley Monteith
